By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Gov. Edwin Edwards says law officers may have mistakenly fired buckshot instead of tear-gas cartridges at strife-torn Southern University, where two young men were killed during a campus disturbance.

"It's perfectly logical and reasonable," Edwards said Friday, "that one of the officers could have, in all the excitement, fired the wrong kind of ammunition. He may know of it now and not be willing to tell."

Shotgun shells and tear-gas cartridges, Edwards added, are similar in appearance.

State police and sheriff's office spokesman, however, stuck to their contention that officers at the scene fired nothing but tear-gas cartridges.

Three weeks of campus unrest climaxed Thursday morning when a force of sheriff's deputies and state police moved to flush occupying students from the predominantly black school's administration building. The two young black men died in the confrontation that followed.

Two days after the clash, only one of the victims, Denver Smith, 20, of New Roads, La., had been identified. Local, state and federal authorities said they were trying to identify the other dead man.

Autopsies by East Baton Rouge Parish Coroner Hypolite Landry showed both men, who fell at the same time and about three feet apart, had died of buckshot wounds in the head.

Edwards ordered 500 National Guard troops onto the campus, closed it and said school would re-open after Thanksgiving.

Students on both of Southern's campuses, in New Orleans and Baton Rouge, have boycotted classes since Oct. 24. They demanded the firing of university President Dr. G. Leon Netterville and Dean Emmett Bashful, head of the New Orleans campus, both of whom are black.

In addition, the boycotting students said they wanted more voice in the school's administrative affairs.

Spending of shared tax is watched

By WILLIAM S. BECKER
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey is keeping a close eye on local units of government to see how they intend to use $320 million in federal revenue sharing money they are expected to receive during the next biennium, he said Friday.

Lucey, who has been "jawboning" with local officials to press for funneling of the money into property tax relief, said he has not yet decided whether he will seek legislative controls to ensure the money is not spent frivolously.

"If I see any evidence of it (frivolous spending), it will greatly influence my decision whether to impose legislative controls," the governor said in an interview.

Lucey has pledged to use the state's portion of federal revenue sharing money, plus a $108 million state budget surplus—$265 million in all—for property tax relief.

In a speech to local officials Wednesday, Lucey called property tax relief "the highest priority for state and local government in Wisconsin over the next biennium."

But a State Department of Local Affairs and Development spokesman said the federal Revenue Sharing Act contains no provisions for state control on how local governments use the money.

The act gives the governor "review and comment" authority over the revenue sharing program, but the authority is only advisory, the spokesman said.

With no strings attached, Lucey will be forced to apply indirect pressure on local governments if he feels pressure is needed to guarantee the money goes for tax relief.

Some local officials at Wednesday's meeting expressed displeasure at the prospect of state controls.

My understanding was that revenue sharing money was meant to help communities solve their problems, Appleton Mayor James P. Sutherland said. "I think we're going to be told what these solutions ought to be."

"If they're (state officials) going to do that, I think they are on the other side of the table, not our side," he said.

"I don't need anybody to identify my priorities—I know what they are," said Mayor Kenneth Huck of Racine.

Asked to what lengths he would be willing to go with legislative controls, Lucey mentioned a freeze on local spending which is being tried in several states, including neighboring Minnesota.

Lucey said such a control would freeze local tax levies, with some allowance made for inflationary cost increases. Minnesota's plan allows a six per cent raise each year before local governments are penalized by reductions in state aides, Lucey said.

Under such a procedure, the governor said, a community would be provided "escape valves" so it could raise spending "under legitimate pressure."

Such valves would involve an appeal to a state agency, or local referendum, Lucey said. The governor said he favors local referendum.

Asked what kind of reception he expected the legislature to give proposals for local government spending controls, Lucey said he expected it would be favorable.

But he anticipates formidable opposition from public employe unions and municipal officials if he tries to get approval of controls.

The U.S. Treasury Department has announced it will put $5.3 billion in the mail to state and local governments during December and January as the first allocation under the revenue sharing plan.

Justice institute idea criticized

DENVER (AP) — A top Nixon administration official says the proposed National Institute of Justice would be a "senseless waste."

But one of the chief backers, with good lines to the White House, isn't losing hope.

"We're just at the beginning of the beginning," said Washington lawyer Charles S. Rhyne, even as Jerris Leonard, head of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, was criticizing the proposal at a meeting here of leading judges from across the nation.

Rhyne, a close friend of President Nixon ever since they roomed together at the Duke University Law School, spoke fervently Friday of the need for an institute.

"People have lost confidence in our judicial system, and we have got to do something about it," said Rhyne, a former president of the American Bar Association. "The system of delivery of justice has broken down."

"Our whole system is out of date and out of step."

As proposed, the institute would explore problems common to all courts and would have the authority and the money to make grants for court improvement.

"Millions will have to go into the courts," Rhyne said. "Millions will have to go into corrections systems, into law enforcement, into legal education."

The idea of a National Institute of Justice got moving about six years ago within the ABA. U.S. Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger has given the idea his qualified endorsement.

But, among state judges and within the LEAA, which was set up by Congress in 1968 to help improve the justice system, there is strong opposition and resentment.

Leonard, the LEAA administrator, came to the first council meeting of the new Center for State Courts to criticize the idea.

"Platoons of bureaucrats on the Potomac might impose controls on state courts," Leonard said.

"In the American past there has never been any monolithic national judicial system that is so typical of Europe," Leonard said. "And I fail to find one shred of evidence that the public wants this kind of system."

Prices boosted by U. S. Steel

PITTSBURGH (AP) — In an apparent move to head off a profit slump, U.S. Steel Corp., the industry's key barometer and No. 1 producer, has announced price increases on about half its product line.

The company refused to specify the amounts of increase, saying only that the move's cumulative effect would be to raise prices over its entire product line by 2.7 per cent. The increase, the company added, falls within limits previously approved by the Federal Price Commission.

The Price Commission said in Washington that U.S. Steel was using authority granted last Dec. 8 to raise prices by an average of 3.6 per cent. The firm did not use full allowance at that time.

Other big steel producers said they were studying Friday's announcement by U.S. Steel, which usually leads the industry in price moves.

Bethlehem Steel Corp., the No. 2 producer, previously had said it would hold current price lines at least until April 1.

Frederick G. Jaicks, chairman of seventh-ranked Inland Steel of Chicago, said in his company's nine-month report last month that he was disappointed with earnings.

"We are convinced," Jaicks said,

"that price adjustments will be a necessity for Inland to reach a satisfactory level."

U.S. Steel said the increases would apply to semifinished bars, used in part in the auto industry; rod, structural, tubular and plate products, used primarily in machinery and construction, and railroad and wire products. All take effect Jan. 1.

At the same time, U.S. Steel said it would raise tin mill prices Feb. 16.

U.S. Steel announced 2½ weeks ago that its net income for the first nine months of 1972 totaled $102.31 million, down from $108.08 million for the corresponding period of 1971.

POWs to get catch-up newspaper

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A special magazine-style look at the United States since 1965 is being published by the Copley Newspapers to be given the nation's prisoners of war as they return.

The 24-page chronicle was produced by a special staff working since early 1971. This week 1,500 copies of "In Brief — A Catch-up of News from the Missing Years" were sent to the U.S. Department of Defense for distribution.

"In Brief" was a public service venture of James S. Copley, chairman of the corporation which publishes the Copley Newspapers in California and Illinois.

A heavy, textured paper was used for the pictures and accounts of each year's major news events.

The ex-POW will see a Los Angeles Times photograph of the slain Robert F. Kennedy and Associated Press pictures ranging from fashions and sports to the Charles Manson murder trial.

"We wrestled all the time with what was important, realizing the balance was a very sensitive thing," a spokesman said. "Mr. Copley believes a lot of the men will have a real void about what has gone on in their country. We set out to distill the great events."

The story ends with the general elections of Nov. 7.

A second press run is planned. Copies will be given to members of Congress and public groups, including organizations directly concerned with aiding the war prisoners.

How copies will be given to the Americans released at the close of the Vietnam war is being left up to defense officials.

Chicago 7 contempt sentences are limited

CHICAGO (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has set a limit on the contempt-of-court sentences that may be ordered for the Chicago 7 defendants and their lawyers and has dropped entirely contempt charges against Bobby Seale.

The ruling were made Friday by Judge Edward T. Gignoux, who was sent from Portland, Maine, to hear appeals of contempt citations handed down at the end of the conspiracy trial.

The contempt charges stemmed from the actions of the defendants and the lawyers in the courtroom of Judge Julius J. Hoffman, who heard the case relating to disturbances at the time of the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

By limiting contempt sentences to no more than 177 days, Gignoux agreed with a government motion which sought to avoid jury trials on the contempt-charge appeals.

Contempt sentences of more than six months require a jury trial on appeal.

The charges against Seale also were dropped at the government's request. Seale heads the Black Panther party.

An appeals court had ruled that, if Seale were prosecuted for contempt, the government would have to reveal the contents of eavesdropping logs. The government refused, saying such disclosures would "endanger the national security."

Five of the defendants in the trial — which began in September 1969 and ended in February 1971 — were convicted on charges that they individually crossed state lines to incite a riot.

Renard C. Davis, Abbott "Abbie" Hoffman, Thomas Hayden, David Dellinger and Jerry C. Rubin were convicted and sentenced to five years in prison and were fined $5,000 each. They

Boys terrorize woman of 84

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An 84-year-old widow living on the 16th floor of a north Philadelphia public-housing project is recovering from five days of terror during which she was beaten with a broomstick, stripped, raped, tortured, burned and robbed of her savings by four youths, police said.

The widow, with no known relatives, was so bruised and covered with welts and frightened that she ate nothing during the ordeal.

It began Sunday, police said, when the four youths — aged 10, 11, 12 and 13

— knocked on the door of her apartment in the Fairhill Housing Project and asked if they could run an errand.

Recognizing the voices of youths whom police said she knew (one lived next door; another had delivered her groceries), the 5-foot-1, 125-pound woman opened the door and permitted them to enter.

But, police said, the youths immediately ransacked drawers, ripped open a mattress and demanded money.

They found some money, took the only key she had to the door and threatened to kill her if she told anyone about their intrusion, the victim told police.

On Monday, investigators said the youths used the key to enter the apartment, and again ransacked the room for money. And they assaulted and raped the woman, police said.

On Tuesday, the youths forced their way into the apartment, raped the woman and burned her on the chest with an electric comb and matches.

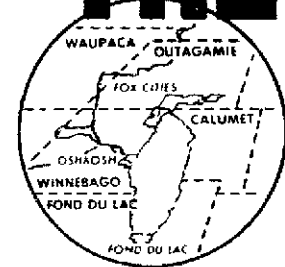

The youths returned Wednesday and Thursday and committed similar attacks. A social worker found the apartment in shambles during a visit Friday morning, police said.

The worker said the woman told her the youths took all her money, about $229. The woman had no telephone and was afraid to leave the apartment because she feared being locked out without her key.

The youths were charged with burglary, robbery, rape, vandalism, indecent assault and aggravated assault and battery.

Ex-senator convicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for former Maryland Sen. Daniel B. Brewster say they will appeal his conviction on charges that he accepted $14,500 from a mail order firm lobbyist to influence his vote on postal legislation.

A U.S. District Court jury Friday found Brewster guilty of accepting an unlawful gratuity—a lesser offense under the federal bribery statute with which he was charged. The crime of which he was convicted involves no intent to be influenced criminally.

The lobbyist, Cyrus T. Anderson, was found guilty of three counts of bribery of a public official—the offense under which both men originally were charged. And the mail order firm, Spiegel Inc., pleaded guilty after the verdict was announced to two counts of payment of an unlawful gratuity.

The company was fined the maximum $10,000 on each count. A third count against Spiegel was dismissed.

Attorneys for both Brewster and Anderson said they would appeal and Norman P. Ramsey, Brewster's attorney, said he might file a motion for a new trial.

Rockets rout Beaver Dam

BEAVER DAM — Neenah used a late first quarter surge to build a 28-point halftime lead in breezing to a 66-37 basketball win over sloppy and cold shooting Beaver Dam here Friday. It was the season opener for both clubs.

The Rockets, holding a slim 10-8 edge with less than three minutes remaining in the first quarter, scored the last 18 points of the segment, and then outscored the Beavers 15-2 in the second period to put the lid on the contest by halftime.

Brett Huus, a 6-3 senior, set the early pace for the Rockets as he fired in six field goals in the opening quarter, most of them middle-range efforts from the left side baseline.

In coasting to their 19th straight regular season non-conference triumph, the Rockets drilled home 18 of 35 first half field goal attempts, while the Beavers, paralyzed by their shooting ineptitude, managed only 4 of 27.

A 12-foot jumper by the losers' Curt Anderson snapped Neenah's consecutive point string at 18 early in the second period and gave the Beavers their only points for the quarter.

The comfortable point spread gave Neenah coach Ron Einerson ample opportunity to utilize his bench, as all 15 players saw action and 12 of them scored. Huus, the only returnee to see extensive action for the Rockets' state meet runnerup forces last season, flexed the nets for a game-high 21 points, including 10 of 18 from the field.

Roger Johnson, a 6-5 senior center, contributed 13, while Gary Martola added 11, as he meshed his last five fielders after missing his first five tries.

Beaver Dam, like Neenah a tall and inexperienced team, was paced by 6-4 center John Wilke, who collected 10 points and 12 rebounds. Anderson added eight points before fouling out early in the final period.

Neenah closed with an unofficial .423 on 28 field goals in 66 shots, while the hosts compiled a cool .228 on 13 for 57.

Winning basket not allowed

Ghosts' victory nullified

BY DAN VANDERPAS

KAUKAUNA — A fine performance with an unhappy ending would be a good way to describe Kaukauna High School's 49-48 non-conference loss at the hands of a much taller Sheboygan North contingent here Friday night.

Todd Luedtke, the Ghosts' 6-5 junior center, gave his team an apparent 50-49 victory when, with :01 left to be played, he hit the hoop. But the effort was ruled an uncontrolled tip and the 2-pointer was nullified.

"I was happy with the way the boys performed tonight," KHS coach Ken Vander Velden said. "Even though we were shorter, we limited them to only one offensive rebound during the first half. Although we played well, I hated to see us lose it that way."

The game, which was deadlocked no less than seven times, was as close as the final score indicates. With :27 left in the first session, Kaukauna's Dave VanderLoop split the twines from the circle to tie the score at 8-8. But a pair of free tosses by Bill Rishel provided the Raiders with a 10-8 edge going into quarter II.

Reed Giordana, a 6-0 junior guard who led KHS pointmakers with eight buckets and a gift for 17 points, connected with a drive in layup with 1:59 until intermission to deadlock the count at 20. A foul on the play enabled Giordana to give Kaukauna a 1-point lead by converting a free throw.

Hunting prospects mixed

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

About a half million of Wisconsin's great outdoorsmen began playing their trade early today in quest of fleet-footed quarry as the state's 1972 deer season opened with quite a few bangs.

The snow so attractive to hunters was almost nowhere to be seen as the cautious potential deerslayers stalked their elusive targets.

If past years are any barometer, deer will not be the only creatures to die during the nine-day season.

In 1971, 18 hunters died, 10 from gunfire and eight from heart attacks. The worst year for deaths by gunfire was 1959, when 13 hunters were shot by their cohorts.

The National Weather Service forecast some light snow flurries today and Sunday, with mostly cloudy skies and temperatures in the upper 20s and low 30s today and the low 30s Sunday.

Hunters were advised to bring plenty of wet gear.

"Where you needed hip boots last year you'll need chest high waders this year," reported Larry Miller, district conservation warden at Eau Claire.

Stan DeBoer, district DNR chief at Green Bay, said hip boots are needed to trudge through area streams, many of which are at near bankfull levels.

More deer than last year have been spotted in Marathon, Portage, Wood, Juneau, Adams, Waushara and Waupaca Counties, but prospects looked less bright in areas of Vilas, Oneida, Forest, Langlade and Lincoln Counties.

The DNR will operate more than 400 registration stations, where hunters will be required to register each deer taken. Deer are to be tagged immediately after being killed and may not be skinned prior to registration.

Last year's harvest totaled 58,334 bucks and 12,501 antlerless deer

Newman downs St. John

WAUSAU — The Wausau Newman Cardinals defeated Little Chute St. John, 74-66, in a non-conference basketball opener Friday night.

Newman scored the first six points of the game and led, 16 to 13, at the end of the first quarter. Again at the start of the second quarter Newman opened with a 6-point spree only to let St. John score the last six and tie it at half time 30-30.

In the third quarter, it was St. John's turn to score the first six, but the Chutes could not hold on and the game was deadlocked at the end of the third, 48-48.

The fourth stanza was a see-saw battle, tied eight times including the score at the end of regulation time 66-66.

Wausau took the overtime lead right away as Bob Hollis scored on a three-point play. St. John never tallied in this period missing on 10 field goal attempts and six charity tosses. Gerry Wenzel was the controlling factor for Newman in the final period. Although he scored only two points, he dominated the boards at both ends of the floor.

Even though Newman out rebounded St. John the Dutchmen got off more shots because of a tenacious pressing defense which forced Wausau to turn the ball over no fewer than 22 times. Newman however was able to out shoot Little Chute, 32-69 to 30-76.

Wausau's scoring attack was very balanced with four people in double figures. Wenzel led the way with 20. Gary Trenbath had 16, Jeff Roberts 15 and Hollis added 10.

Little Chute was paced by sharp shooting Mike Casey who sank 10 buckets and one free shot for a total of 21. Bob Baumann had 12 and Dave Van Lieshout 10.

ELKHART LAKE — A fourth quarter Brillion rally fell short as the Lions suffered a 47-43 non-conference defeat to Elkhart Lake here Friday night.

The Resorters (2-0) jumped off to an 18-6 margin by the end of the opening quarter and held a 25-15 advantage at the half.

Brillion (1-1) was outscored, 10-9, in the third quarter and the Resorters held a 35-24 spread going into the fourth segment.

The Lions battled back in the fourth quarter, outscoring their hosts, 19-12, to move within three points (46-43) with 30 seconds remaining.

Randy Tutz netted 10 points to pace Brillion, while Dave Schmidt scored 12 points to lead Elkhart Lake.

King nips Patriots

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

Appleton East's Patriots just missed presenting Tom Gossens with an opening-game victory here Friday night but drew a salute from the new coach for their poise and refusal to fold under the pressure exerted by highly-aggressive Milwaukee Rufus King.

"I'm proud of the way they came back," said Gossens after the Patriots had dropped a 60-75 decision in a non-conference basketball thriller.

Behind by eight points (56-48) with only 2 minutes, 10 seconds remaining, the Patriots stormed within one (58-57) at the :14 mark. At that juncture, King committed a turn-over on an out-of-bounds play mix-up, and East had a chance to grab the lead. Big Tim Kelley, rally, missed a 15-foot shot. East's Dan Heinritz got the rebound but was tied up by Andy Walker.

King controlled the tip and the ball until only one second remained. Odell Ball then converted a desperation foul into two free throws for the final 3 point margin.

Principally because of extraordinarily cold shooting, it was uphill most of the way for the taller Patriots, who led only three times (9-8, 11-10 and 13-11). A free throw by 6-foot Duane Woodson, a 22-point scorer who was the outstanding player on the court, broke a 13 tie with 6:44 left in the second quarter and King led for the last 22:24 of the game. The free throw was part of a 9-point spree by the quick handed Milwaukeeans, who had turned an 11-13 deficit into a 20-13 edge.

Fail to capitalize

The Patriots hit the boards hard to get extra shots — but failed to capitalize on many of them — and missed a number of easy lay-ups. East shooting frustrations reached a peak in the second quarter, as the hosts found the mark on only one of 18 field tries — for a 5.6 per cent rate.

After a meager 13.3 per cent first half (four of 30), the Patriots improved to a 12-of-39 shooting pace in the second half — to finish at 23.2 per cent. King, riding the superb moves of Woodson, fired at a 14-for-25 pace in the second half to finish at a 39 per cent accuracy rate (23 of 59). East made 25 of 40 free throws to stay in contention as King's pressure defense began proving costly to the Generals in fouled-out manpower.

East trailed by eight (29-21) early in the third period before making the first of two runs at the Generals. Kelley scored five of the 10 points as East closed to within 33-31. Then, after King pulled away again, Heinritz fired in five points to bring East within two (40-38) at the end of the period.

King's press took its toll for the first time early in the final quarter, and Woodson and Ron Dantzler fired the Generals to their biggest lead — nine points (50-41) with 5 minutes left. But Heinritz and Jim Vandenberg cut the deficit to four. King whipped in a pair of buckets and the lead was eight (56-48).

The resilient Patriots bounced back once again behind Vandenberg's rebound goal and Kelley's 3-point play and 15-foot jumper. It was 56-55, and the cliff-hanging was on in earnest. King's Gary Pinkerton hit two free throws — and the margin was four points.

Kelley supplied 20 of the Patriots' points, while Dantzler backed up Woodson with 13 for the Generals.

Bucks put it together in rally over Celtics

BOSTON (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks, suddenly as powerful as they're cracked up to be, put it all together in the second half Friday night for a come-from-behind, 95-88 National Basketball Association victory over Boston.

It was Milwaukee's 12th win in 16 starts, and averted what would have been the club's first three-game losing streak since March, 1971. It was also only the second Milwaukee victory over a division contender this season, and pulled the Bucks to 1-1 in their weeklong odyssey against division powerhouses.

In their first such showdown, they lost to defending NBA champion Los Angeles 95-92. The odyssey continues tonight at New York (15-3) and then returns to Milwaukee Tuesday for another encounter with Boston, now 14-2.

The Celtics, winningest team in the NBA, held a 17-point first quarter lead over Milwaukee at 40-23, led 50-35 at intermission, and still led 66-51 with six minutes gone in the third quarter.

But Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who finished with 32 points, and Bob Dandridge, who totaled 16, combined to score the next six points of the game, and the Bucks' surge was at full speed ahead.

Boston's lead dwindled to 68-62 at the end of three periods, and with Lucius Allen and Curtis Perry helping the streaking Abdul-Jabbar, Milwaukee led for the first time at 85-84 with 2:22 left in the game.

Perry finished with 14 points and 12 rebounds, Allen scored 12 and Oscar Robertson 11 for Milwaukee, which outbounced the Celts 55-46.

Elsewhere in the NBA Friday night, Detroit whipped Chicago 109-96, Kansas City-Omaha downed Cleveland 115-96, Baltimore took Phoenix 117-96, Seattle beat Philadelphia 105-92, Portland trimmed Golden State 105-97 and Los Angeles nipped Buffalo 103-100.

In the American Association, New York trimmed San Diego 109-99, Virginia downed Kentucky 122-115, Carolina defeated Indiana 127-120 and Memphis took Utah 123-117 in overtime.

Dave Bing led the Pistons with 25 points, eight in the spurt that put Detroit in charge. The victory left the Pistons at 4-5 under new Coach Ray Scott.

Baltimore roared from behind with Phil Chenier and Elvin Hayes leading the way as the Bullets ripped Phoenix.

Chenier threw in 18 points and Hayes had 17 after intermission as the Bullets wiped out a nine-point third period deficit. Chenier finished the game with 23 points and Hayes had 19. Wes Unseld contributed 23 points for the Bullets while Charley Scott's led Phoenix.

Nate Archibald threw in 40 points and picked up 11 assists as Kansas City-Omaha defeated Cleveland. It was the seventh victory in the last eight games for the Kings. John Johnson led Cleveland with 26 points.

Spencer Haywood's 29 points led Seattle past Philadelphia as the Super-sonics ended a ninegame losing streak.

A 13-point spurt at the end of the third period put the Sonics in control of the game. It was the third straight loss and 18th in 19 games this season for the 76ers.

Sidney Wicks and Geoff Petrie hit 25 points apiece leading Portland past Golden State.

Jerry West threw in a free throw and a basket in the final 36 seconds of the game and Los Angeles squeezed past Buffalo. West led the Lakers with 27 points as Los Angeles scored its ninth straight victory.

Brockington may not start

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay Packers rushing leader John Brockington has been pronounced able to play at Houston Sunday, but whether he will start remained undecided after Friday's two hour workout.

"Brockington certainly will be able to play, but I'm not prepared to say right now whether he will start," Coach Dan Devine said.

Brockington incurred a charley horse in the Packers' 23-17 National Football League victory at Chicago last Sunday and has participated in about only half of each workout this week.

At least publicly, Devine remained undecided about his starting quarterback. Rookie Jerry Tagge was impressive last weekend in relief of Scott Hunter, who was knocked unconscious, and the two have shared the position in practice since.

"The chances are very good Scott will be in at the start of the game, but I want to look at both players tomorrow," Devine said.

The club planned to leave today and work out in the Astrodome in the afternoon.

Devine also said offensive tackle Francis Peay, sidelined the past two games with a stomach disorder, would be withheld again. Bill Hayhoe has been starting at the position and Kevin Hunt has taken Peay's place on the roster.

Friday's workout in 30 degree temperatures was "good and sharp," Devine said.

While the Packers lead the National Conference Central Division with a 6-3 record and Houston is 1-8, Devine was impressed with the Oilers when they upset Green Bay 20-3 in an exhibition Aug. 19.

"If our players are thinking past Houston, we're going to get beat," said Devine, whose Packers' games with powerful Washington and division rivals Detroit and Minnesota the next three weeks probably will decide whether they make the Abdul-Jabbar led both clubs with 19 rebounds, and scored 21 of his points in the second half.

Boston got 30 points from veteran John Havlicek and 17 from Jo Jo White.

"If we can rebound against the Celts like this we can do it against anybody," Bucks' Coach Larry Costello said. "Down by 15 at the half to a team like that and winning, what, an achievement. It shows what we can do."

Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn restrained himself from saying the word "officials," but everyone who was listening knew where he placed the blame for the Celtics loss.

"You know I can't comment on certain things," Heinsohn said. "I don't want to pay that kind of money. We were running, but our momentum was

Manawa surpasses last year's victory total

BY MARY HARP

LITTLE CHUTE — The Manawa Wolves won their second consecutive game and first in Central Wisconsin Conference action Friday night by defeating the Little Chute Mustangs 60-55 with the aid of a sparkling 76 per cent from the free throw line.

Last year the Wolves were 1-18.

The Wolves canned 22 of their 28 charity attempts, with Tim Drath pacing the charity stripe action by sinking 11 of the 13 tosses offered to him.

Free throws were the main difference in the game as the losers counted only five points from the line in nine attempts.

The game, which was relatively close throughout, turned out to be a real barnburner in the closing minutes.

With 1:12 remaining, and the score standing at 56-50 with Manawa leading, Little Chute's Tim Fitzpatrick chipped two points off the score with a bucket. Manawa then slowly strided down the court hoping to use up time.

It was with :30 to go that Manawa finally got in close enough to the well guarded basket to tally by way of a Steve Lowney toss, once again increasing the LC deficit to six.

The Mustangs immediately dashed down the court, scoring on another Fitzpatrick jumper.

Then, with :04 showing on the clock Manawa's Drath fouled a Little Chute man who was given opportunity to bring the Mustangs within two. He missed, however, on the second toss and the Wolves rushed to their basket to ice the game with a Lowney bucket.

The game was the opener for the losers, while it was an important win for the Wolves. It now gives them a 2-0 record, which might not sound like much, but if you consider that they had only one win in all of last year the picture changes a bit.

In the opening period of play it looked as if the excellent defense of the Wolves had the Mustang offense totally confused as they posted only four points to the winners 10. LC then rattled off seven straight markers to go ahead 13-12 at the buzzer.

Little Chute then began to pull away in the second frame, but the nine-point performance of the visitor's Drath kept them within reach. With less than 1:00 showing on the clock before halftime, LC was leading 30-25 until Mark Buchholz tallied three free throws and a bucket to tie the score. Then Drath, who scored seven points from the charity stripe in the period, pumped in a pair to set the halftime score in Manawa's favor, 32-30.

After the break, Manawa took over control of the game with Little Chute playing catch-up for the remainder up until the last few minutes.

Drath counted 15 point for the winners, with Pat Loughrin adding 12. Phil Janssen led the Mustangs with 14, and both Fitzpatrick and Wundrow tallied 12.

Kimberly rolls over Green Bay West '5'

GREEN BAY — Lee Reider and Randy Thiel scored 20 and 19 points, respectively, to ignite the Kimberly Papermakers to a 67-45 non-league triumph over Green Bay West in the season opener for both teams here Friday night.

After holding a 10-point (28-18) half-time cushion, the Papermakers, with the help of the accurate long-range shooting of Reider and Thiel, outpointed the Wildcats, 24-10, in the third period taking a commanding 52-38 lead.

Chuck Ruys also aided the Kimberly cause by scoring 11 points and doing the bulk of the team's board work as he hauled down 16 rebounds.

Marinette beats Seymour '5'

The Marinette Marines came from an 8-point deficit in the first quarter to hand the Seymour Indians a 54 to 39 loss in Bay Conference action Friday night.

Seymour's Paul Hoffman canned the first six points of the game and hit a total of 10 before the first quarter was over. But it wasn't enough to keep the Marines down. In the second stanza, Reuben Johnson and Bryan Boettcher scored six and seven points, respec-

In the decisive third quarter, KHS successfully applied a full-court press, which yielded a few West turnovers and allowed the Papermakers to score four successive buckets.

Neither team was accurate from the floor. Kimberly, which had a whopping total of 101 shots, converted 29 for a 28.7 per cent average, while the Wildcats made 17 of 65 for a 27.7 per cent mark.

Todd Reckelberg was the top scorer for Green Bay West with 12 points.

Truckers roll over Pirates

BAYPORT — The Clintonville Truckers out scored the Bayport Pirates 20-10 in the final quarter to win their Bay Conference opener 72 62 Friday night.

The Truckers were down early, but came back to lead 36-33 at half. They then let Bayport catch up and tie the game at 52-52 at the end of the third. But a hard nosed pressing defense which caused some costly turn overs and a balanced scoring attack allowed Clintonville to forge ahead and mark its first conference victory.

The big gun for the Truckers was Scott Schweigert who poured in 24 points, half from the floor and half from the charity line. He was joined in the double figure column by Mike Hanson who had 15, and Randy Korb and Cal Waite both who had 12.

The big gun for Bayport was Brian Wnght who canned 11 buckets and five free throws for 27 points to lead all scorers. His teammate Steve Vomatic contributed 17 before fouling out. ## Bonduel cagers hand Marion 83-50 loss

The Bonduel Bears took it to the Marion Mustangs Thursday night in Central Wisconsin Conference action whipping the visitors, 83 to 50.

The Bears scored 27 points in the first quarter while holding Marion to 10. The outmanned Mustangs tried to come back but their efforts were in vain as Bonduel outscored them in each of the first three quarters.

Jeff Busch led the winners with 18 points while sophomore Mark Meyer drilled home 17 to pace Marion. # Ripon downs New London, 59-48

RIPON — The Ripon Tigers avenged a last season loss to New London (which snapped a 17 game victory streak) by handing the Bulldogs a 59-48 East Central Conference setback here Friday night. It was the league opener for both teams.

The host's jumped off to an 8 0 margin and were never in trouble. The Tigers boosted their lead to 15 points (40 25) early in the second half.

NL failed to give up and in the fourth quarter the Bulldogs cut their deficit to 51 46 by scoring nine straight points but Bob Sather ended the Tiger drought with a steal and a basket and Ripon was back in command.

The Tigers held a 19 11 advantage after the first quarter and by outscoring New London 19 14, in the second segment, built up a comfortable 38 25 cushion at the half.

Fond du Lac '5' defeat Cyclones

MENASHA — A rash of first half turnovers led to a 24 point deficit at the half way mark and proved to be the difference as Fond du Lac Co. downed the UW Fox Valley Center Cyclones 80 54 Friday.

The Cyclones threw the ball away 20 times in the first 20 minutes to drop far behind. However Appleton East graduate Tony Kohl (6-6) brought the Cyclones back in the final half.

Kohl hauled in 20 rebounds and tallied 18 points as UW FVC played the conference favorites to a near standstill the rest of the way.

Dave Hanke scored 10 points for the losers. Clarence Thomas of Fond du Lac hit for 22.

Foxes officials set for meeting

The Appleton Foxes' delegation to the baseball convention in Hawaii will depart Friday from Chicago. General Manager Ed Holtz and a number of club directors will make the trip.

Officials will report on the convention Dec. 12 during the annual stockholders meeting in the Outagamie Bank.

Holtz learned that Cedar Rapids of the Midwest League had lost its major league affiliate — St. Louis. A new affiliate may be found at the upcoming convention.

St. Lawrence tips Chilton

ST. LAWRENCE — After spotting Chilton a 3 0 lead, St. Lawrence outscored the Tigers, 22 5 in the remaining time of the first quarter, then hung on for a 69-62 win here in a non-conference game Friday night.

After seemingly being out of the game at the end of the first quarter, Chilton fought back gallantly, only to see a fourth quarter rally fall short.

Reader paces Polar Bears

WEYAUWEGA — Hortonville combined the talents of 5 2 junior center Bob Reader with the foul problems of Weyauwega's Indians to post a 77 65 win in the East Central Conference opener here Friday night.

Although the Indians pretty much held their own in the first half, the Polar Bears turned Reader loose in the third quarter as he pumped in 14 points, matching Weyauwega's total output for that stanza.

In the fourth quarter, the Indians ran

Chargers turn back Shiocton

WITTENBERG BIRMAMWOOD — The Wittenberg Birmamwood chargers jumped off to a 16 8 first period lead and were never headed as they whipped Shiocton 59 35 Friday night in a Central Wisconsin Conference opener.

The Chargers are now 2 0 in overall play while Shiocton is winless in three encounters.

W.B. outscored the Indians in every quarter and allowed Shiocton just one period of double figures. The losers tallied 13 points in the third stanza.

Wisconsin Rapids '5' wins over Bluejays

WISCONSIN RAPIDS — Menasha's Bluejays struggled back from a 9-point disadvantage going into the final quarter to tie the Wisconsin Rapids, at 49-all, but the hosts rattled off 10 straight markers to clinch their season opener, 61-55.

Lincoln took a 12 8 lead after the initial stanza and then stormed for 21 more points in the second quarter. Menasha meanwhile was held to just 24 first half points.

Each team poured through 16 third quarter markers before Menasha tied the winners. WR however scored their five baskets while holding the Hays scoreless for nearly five minutes.

Waupaca routs Berlin

WAUPACA — Waupaca used a balanced attack and a stingy defense in crushing Berlin, 92 58, in an East Central Conference opener here Friday night.

The game became a one sided affair by early as the score stood at 24-10 after one period. The Comets didn't let up in the second quarter, and by halftime, the score was 50-18.

Defending champions win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Defending state champions Milwaukee Hamilton and Milwaukee Marquette posted victories Friday night in the first heavy round of action in the 1972-73 Wisconsin high school basketball season.

Hamilton, state public school tournament champion, ran into slowdown tactics by Pewaukee but managed a 41 36 victory. Robin Bachman and Bruce Thomas led the Wildcats with 12 points apiece.

Marquette, which built a reputation for strong defense in carving a 26 0 record en route to the independent schools' title, exploded with a 78-45 rout of Milwaukee Washington.

The Hilltoppers displayed characteristic balance as Wayne Heidenreich threw in 20 points, Jimmy Smith 17 and alstater Jeff Jonas 16. Marquette burst to a 14-9 first quarter lead and all but wrapped it up with a 25-point second period.

Neenah, 58 52 loser to Hamilton in last March's public school championship game, opened the new season by crushing Beaver Dam 66-37. The Rockets, who lost the 1969 and 1970 championship games on late second baskets, have a 94 11 record in four and Bulldogs managed only 28 per cent of their shots — 19 of 66 attempts.

The Tigers also posted a 33 24 advantage in rebounds although Eglad grabbed 11 — high for either team.

USOC seeks ways to disqualify athletes — Evans

KANSASCITY (AP) — Lee Evans, the world record holder in the 400 meters, charged Friday that the Amateur Athletic Union and the Olympic Committee look for ways to disqualify athletes from the Olympic Games and that things happen in the Olympics that "totally blow your mind...cheaters who eventually won gold medals."

Clifford H. Buck, president of the U. S. Olympic Committee, denied Evans' allegations that the organization tries to get athletes disqualified and said the statement was "unfair."

Both Evans and Buck were speakers at a sports session during the Associated Press Managing Editors convention.

Evans, who also charged discrimination against Negro athletes and that the Olympics had a political flavor, said, "It's time for the AAU and the Olympic Committee to get on our side."

"They put the pressure on the black Americans. This is my county but I know where my people are from... Being a black man, I found out the doors weren't open to me as they should have been to a man who won two gold medals."

Evans, a college teacher at San Jose, Calif., won his medals in the 1968 Olympics at Mexico City.

Evans said he "came home to a lot of problems" because of things he had said at the Olympics "but they came from my heart. I didn't think I should be persecuted. I know some black athletes who feel like I did, and I know some white athletes who feel like I did."

Buck, in a long rebuttal in which he praised the Olympics and the USOC, turned to Evans midway through his speech and said:

"It is unfair that the USOC looks for reasons to eliminate an athlete. I can't believe, Lee, you are serious... Our position is that the athlete is right until he is proven wrong."

Buck said in cases where athletes' eligibility was questioned, the USOC "made an all-out effort to qualify these athletes for the Games. We do not propose to lower our idealistic standards just because we don't grasp them every time we reach."

Both Evans and Buck mentioned the conduct of some athletes in refusing to salute the American flag and other actions which proved embarrassing.

Buck said the USOC "never condoned the conduct on the reviewing stand but thought a hearing should have been given. There is no process by which you can detect athletes who will not be good ambassadors."

Evans said he thinks the Games should be open to all athletes, both amateur and professional, whether they come from Africa or Southern Rhodesia or from anywhere.

"I want the Olympic Games where anyone on this earth can compete," Evans told the APME, "whether he's a professional or not. It's no fun to win a medal if you know there's somebody sitting at home or in the stands who could have won it."

"Those who want professionals in the Olympics do not realize that their purpose," Buck countered, "is not to search out the greatest athlete."

Wolves trip Omro

WINNECONNE — The Winneconne Wolves won their East Central Conference opener Friday night defeating the Omro Foxes 56-49. It wasn't until the last 2:30 that the Wolves could put the game away though.

Jim Fahley led the charge for the Wolves in the final minutes canning three of his seven buckets in that time. Fahley had 14 for the game and got added help from teammates Dave Reinders who netted 16 and Bob Olson who had 13.

The Foxes were led by the Kratz cousins. Mark Kratz had 16 for the game, nine in the first quarter, and Dave Kratz dumped in 14.

WINNECONNE (12-16-16-45) Luce 2-3-8; Krings 1-3-3; Ryt 6-8-1; Fahley 7-8-2; Olson 5-3-4; Reinders 8-9-2; Rietow 1-2-2. Totals 25-4-15; FTM—11.

OMRO (15-16-12-49) McKratz 5-8-4; D. Kratz 6-2-4; Laker 1-2-2; Kratz 8-2-4; Kolbus 1-4-4; Dobbstein 3-4-3. Totals 16-17-21; FTM—3.

Rosholt tops T-Birds

IOLA-SCANDINAVIA — The Rosholt Hornets held Iola-Scandinavia to a total of 12 points in the second and third quarters in posting a 54-45 win in Central State Conference action here last night.

Jim Bowles led the winners with 21 markers, and Mark Kromie followed with 16.

For I-S, Greg Roe counted 13 while Gary Jensen added 11.

IOLA-SCANDINAVIA (14-7-19-45) Jensen 4-3-2; Cain 1-0-1; Timm 1-1-1; Hoffmann 1-3-4; Carter 1-3-1; Roe 4-1-2; Bowles 2-3-1. Totals 24-11-15; FTM—18.

ROSHOLT (24-12-21-54) Bowles 10-1-4; Larson 1-2-2; Womerski 1-0-3; Kromie 6-4-3; Trzaskowski 1-1-1; Zahradka 1-1-1; Demski 1-0-0. Totals 21-12-17; FTM—8.

Wiste sparks Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — What does a hockey player do when he can't get his stick around in time to deflect a puck into the nets? He uses the side of his uniform if his name's Jim Wiste.

"It's a little embarrassing," said the center iceman who triggered a three-goal last period outburst Friday night that sparked Cleveland past the New England Whalers 3-0.

The victory kept the Crusaders atop the Eastern Division of the World Hockey Association and upped their season mark to 12-4-1. The Whalers fell to 9-5-1.

In other WHA action Friday, Alberta downed Chicago 3-1 and Winnipeg defeated Los Angeles 5-1.

In the National Hockey League, Vancouver swamped Los Angeles 8-4 and California defeated Buffalo 5-1.

"It hit the side of my pants," said Wiste explaining how he tipped in defenseman Jim McMaster's slapshot for his third goal of the season.

Alberta also staged a third period rally to knock off Chicago.

The Oilers trailed 1-0 until the final 20 minutes but then got a goal from Jim Harrison in the opening minute of the third period to tie the score.

It stayed 1-1 until Ed Joly connected with just over three minutes left to play. Then Ron Walters hit for the Oilers' clinching goal.

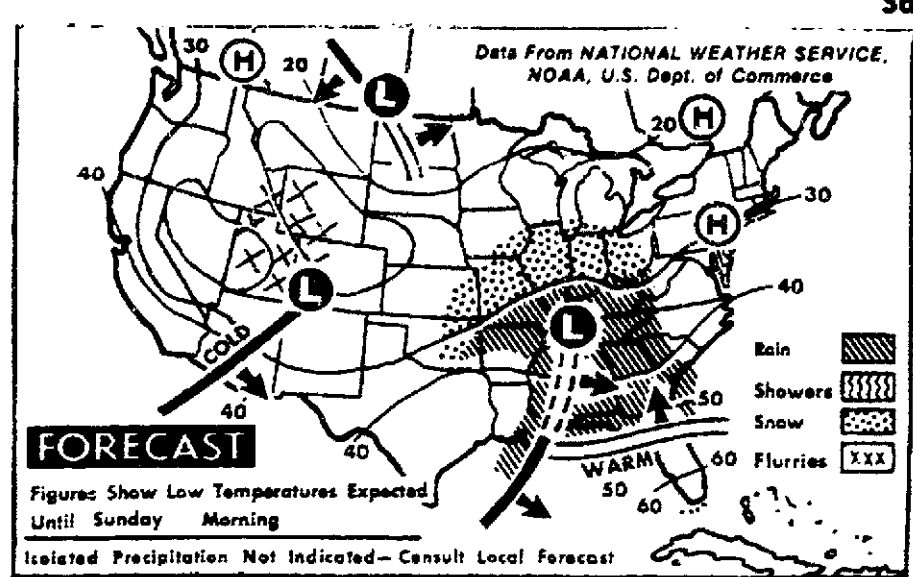

Chris Bortelando scored one goal and assisted two others as Winnipeg whipped Los Angeles. It was the third victory this season for the Jets over the Sharks.

Bobby Schumatz scored three goals and Andre Boudrias added two as Vancouver routed Los Angeles. The Canucks scored three goals in each of the first two periods and then Boudrias' pair in the final period completed the romp.

Two goals apiece by Reg Leach and Joey Johnston led California past Buffalo and ended an eight-game winless streak for the Golden Seals.

Snow, but not here

Snow flurries are forecast in the Central Rockies today. Snow is expected along a band stretching across the lower section of the Midwest extending down into northern Oklahoma. Rain is predicted for much of the South. (AP Wirephoto map)

Another cloudy, cold night

It'll be cloudy and colder tonight with the low in the mid 20s. Sunday will be cloudy with the high again near 35. Winds will be southeast at 5-10 m.p.h. both tonight and Sunday. The possibility of measurable precipitation is 20 per cent both tonight and Sunday.

A large high pressure area presently positioned over Wisconsin is producing cloudy skies and chilly temperatures. Another Pacific weather system will be approaching the state late Sunday, increasing the chance of snow, especially over the southern portion of the state.

In Appleton Friday, the high was 33 and the low 27. The barometer was 30.20 and rising, the dew point 16 degrees and the relative humidity 63 per cent. Winds were northwest at 4 m.p.h. There was a trace of snow.

Sunset today at 4:24 p.m. Sunrise tomorrow at 6:55 a.m. Moonset tomorrow at 5:20 a.m. Full Moon on Monday.

The constellation Orion is now in the southeast at midnight. Rigel and Betelgeuse are its two brightest stars. Rigel is white and Betelgeuse is orange-red.

Courts

Mark A. Laux, 28, 1244 E. Layton Ave., was fined $175 after he was found guilty Friday of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. Laux pleaded no contest when he appeared before Judge Urban P. Van Susteren in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The defendant had been arrested the evening of Nov. 3 in the 1300 block of W. College Avenue. He was further ordered to pay court costs and attend a court-sponsored traffic school.

The case of Donald E. Mattson, 42, 502 W. Atlantic St., who pleaded no contest to a charge of disorderly conduct in a Sept. 12 appearance before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, was closed Friday without any determination of guilt.

The prosecution moved to close the case Friday before Schaefer. Mattson was arrested the evening of Sept. 9 following a disturbance at his residence.

Charges of carrying a concealed weapon and reckless use of a weapon against Leland B. Johnson, 30, route 6, Appleton, were dismissed Friday.

Johnson appeared before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, where the motion to dismiss was entered by the prosecution.

The defendant was taken into custody by county police early on Oct. 2 following an incident at a Town of Greenville tavern, where he reportedly was involved in a fight with his brother. In that fight, Johnson's 32-year-old brother Donald reportedly received a laceration to the top of his head, although neither man was injured when a .22 caliber pistol was fired.

A Jan. 15, 1973 nonjury trial was scheduled Friday for Peter D. Schilling, 21, 1213 N. Richmond St., charged with disorderly conduct relating to a Nov. 9 incident in the 100 block of S. Walnut Street.

Schilling appeared before Judge Urban P. Van Susteren in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, where he was charged with beating a female acquaintance while they were walking down the street.

Two Appleton men were charged with one count of burglary when they appeared Friday before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

David T. Colenso, 18, 1500 E. Pershing St., and Michael E. Malliet, 19, route 2, Appleton, were charged with breaking into the Physicians Medical Laboratory, 418 E. Longview Drive, early Friday.

The two were apprehended by city police, who said the men had broken a window near the north entrance in an apparent attempt to steal drugs from a pharmacy, although pry marks were found on an interior door leading to it.

Both cases were continued to Monday, and bail for each defendant was set at $1,500.

Tavernkeepers plead innocent in gambling case

Pleas of not guilty were entered Friday on behalf of four Appleton tavern owners charged with violating a city gambling ordinance in relation to the operation of football pool cards.

Although the defendants did not appear in court, the pleas were entered by their attorney, Dennis Herrling, who appeared before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2. The defendants include Lawrence Gutreuter, owner of Larry's Badger Bar, 326 W. College Ave.; Norbert VandeVoort, owner of Vande's Bar, 509 N. Appleton St.; Joseph Theisen, owner of Catcher Joe's, 535 W. College Ave., and Bennett Stuckey, owner of Benny's Bar, 525 W. College Ave.

Herrling requested a pretrial conference, which was then set for the afternoon of Dec. 11. He told the court he was not prepared to ask for either a jury or nonjury trial, or whether he would request to have the cases tried separately.

In asking for the pretrial conference, Herrling said, "We feel that there are very serious legal questions concerning (the charges') validity in all respects."

Schaefer indicated that a trial date may be scheduled at the pretrial conference between himself, Herrling and City Atty. David Geenen.

In entering the not guilty pleas, Herrling waived his objections to the manner in which the complaints were issued. He had voiced the objections in a special appearance before Schaefer last Friday. At that time Herrling maintained that the charges were "vague, indefinite and uncertain," and that nothing on the face of the complaint indicated where or when the defendants should appear to face the charges.

The city had approved filing of the charges Nov. 3 after Dist. Atty. James R. Long refused to prosecute anyone unless police could show that organized crime was involved in the money paid into the pools.

The filing of the charges followed the seizing of 12 pool cards from the four taverns on Oct. 31 and Nov. 1. Penalty on first conviction for the city offense is $1 to $100.

ESP expert to speak at UW O Sunday night

OSHKOSH — Sunday's headlines were written a week ago by Russ Burgess. Whether he was correct will be learned when he speaks on extra sensory perception at 8 p.m. Sunday in the Reeve Union Lounge of the University of Wisconsin here.

A parapsychologist, Burgess' talk is part of the Speaker Series programs of the Oshkosh Student Association. It is open to the public without charge.

One week before each engagement he sends the program chairman for that talk a sealed envelope contains the headlines to appear in the community's local paper on the day of his talk.

In his talk, Burgess seeks to separate knowledge from superstition, backing it with scrupulous scientific investigation.

Police & fire beat

An 18-year-old Appleton man and 15-year-old Appleton girl were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital about 12:30 a.m. today after suffering multiple cuts and bruises in a single car accident on Bluebird Lane.

Injured were Cynthia L. Colson, 712 W. Lorain St., and Gary F. Sauer, 1705 E. Pauline St.

According to Appleton police, the Colson girl had just turned left from Telulah Avenue when she lost control of the vehicle and swerved into a nearby woods and hit several trees.

Rita C. Heiser, 24, 918 E. Winnebago St., Appleton, was treated at St. Elizabeth Hospital for chest and rib injuries after she was involved in a two-car accident about 10:25 a.m. Friday at Walnut and Seventh streets.

According to police, she was traveling north on Walnut and was struck after turning in front of a car going south that was driven by Patrick J. Jacklin, 19, 418 W. Glendale Ave.

Thomas J. Lamers, 515 E. Lincoln St., reported to Appleton police Friday the recent theft of four tires, valued at $160, from his unlocked garage.

Appleton firemen were called to the Appleton Neon Sign Co., 1913 N. Northland Ave., about 7:15 p.m. Friday to extinguish a fire that was believed to have been ignited by an acetylene torch.

The fire was contained to electrical wires and other items stored in the work area.

Firemen said that the firm's employees left about 5 p.m. and the fire probably was smoldering for about two hours before it was discovered.

The fire was extinguished in about five minutes, but heavy smoke damage was reported.

Educational allowance for female veterans undergoes expansion

MILWAUKEE — A female veterans' "bill of rights" is included in the new veterans' education law signed by President Nixon last month.

Women veterans no longer have to prove their husbands are disabled and permanently incapable of self-support to receive the additional amounts of Veterans Administration education allowance, compensation and pension money male veterans are allowed for their wives.

R. J. Ballman, director of the VA regional office in Milwaukee, said this provision applies to the GI Bill, vocational rehabilitation, pension, compensation and dependency and indemnity compensation, which is paid for service-connected deaths.

Ballman said the new law also liberalizes the criteria for paying additional amounts for children who are in custody of a veteran and awaiting adoption.

Where the child has been placed for adoption with the veteran under an agreement with an authorized adoption agency, additional benefits may be paid for the child during the time the child remains in custody and before the court decree of adoption, he said.

Until this liberalization, unless there was an interlocutory decree of adoption, no payments could be made while the child was in custody of the veteran until a final decree of adoption was issued.

Ballman said women veterans had been receiving the same additional amounts of VA educational allowance and compensation money payable for children that were paid to male veterans.

The new law says that for all VA benefit purposes, a "wife" shall include the husband of a female veteran and the term "widow" shall include the widower of a female veteran.

Softball pro league planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national tryout for a newly organized softball major league will be held Tuesday in Washington.

Bob Splitter, president of Major League Softball, Inc., said in case of rain, the one-day tryout will be moved to Nov. 28.

"This event gives anyone who has not been seen an opportunity, and, though we don't expect some of the players who travel to Washington to be in top-notch physical shape at this time of year, those who have real talent will be noticed," Splitter said in making the announcement.

Ann Landers

They don't want to pick up socks

Dear Ann Landers: Several women teachers at our school have been doing a slow burn over the letter from the lady who doesn't mind picking up her husband's socks.

What gets us is this: He's the same guy who drops his underwear, shirts and slacks on the floor, leaves the cheese and crackers on the counter, doesn't take his dishes back to the kitchen after a snack, and thinks it's beneath his dignity to rinse out the bath tub or pick up a towel.

A good marriage is based on mutual respect and consideration. Under this system, everybody picks up his own socks and underwear. You sure missed the boat, Ann. We are very disappointed. — Disgruntled Teachers on the South Side

Dear D.T.s on the South Side: I'm a happily married woman on the North Side and for 33 years I've been picking up socks and underwear — and I don't mind in the least. I firmly believe that the wife who resents doing such a simple thing for her husband is really mad at him for something else. I learned early that my husband was a sock-dropper, and he wasn't too careful about where he left his snack dishes, either, but I opted not to retrain him or nag about it. No real marriage is without differences, and I save "complaint and criticism time" for things that are more important.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I married for the second time. Together this wonderful guy and I have boys aged 13, 14, 15, 16 and 20. Our daughter is 11.

One of the young teachers at school has been taking Bill, my 13-year-old stepson, to a gun club where they spend several hours a week. This teacher has been allowing the boy to keep his (the teacher's) gun at our house. The biggest thing in Bill's life right now is being able to hang that gun on the wall of his bedroom.

Ann, there are boys in and out of this house constantly. Bill's 15-year-old brother is seeing a psychiatrist. In the past month he has set off dynamite in the back yard and rigged up a gasoline bomb which, thank God, did not go off. Bill and his 15-year-old brother fight a great deal. They both have quick tempers.

My husband is afraid not to let his son have his way because he threatens to go live with his mother whenever there's a disagreement. I am uneasy about the gun and don't know what to do. How far should I go? — Worry Wart in Virginia

Dear W.W.: You need a third party to mediate this hassle. I recommend the clergyman who married you. I do not approve of children having guns as toys, much less the real thing. Guns are for killing and toy guns are for make-believe killing. The steady diet of violence has had a marked influence on young people according to many experts.

With approximately 20 million hand guns loose in our country, we should be trying to figure out a way to get guns out of the hands of people who have no business having them. Most people who kill were law abiding citizens — until they shot somebody.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an 18-year-old girl and I spend half my time washing my hair. It's long and thick and beautiful, but to keep it that way I have to shampoo it at least once a day. If I wash my hair in the morning it's dirty by dinner time. If I wash it in the evening it's dirty by morning. I've tried every shampoo, rinse, and soap on the market but nothing helps. Any suggestions? — Greasy in New England

Dear G.: I checked with beauticians and skin specialists and they seem to think the problem isn't your hair but your head. You have a strong preoccupation with your crowning glory. It doesn't really need all that shampooing but you have a compulsion to wash it, regardless. I'm sure you won't care for my answer, but here it is.

Precise timing gives declarer the game

South couldn't afford to lose three club tricks in today's hand, and he had to time his plays precisely to avoid defeat. It isn't easy to find the right sequence of plays even if you know where all of the cards are.

West opened the king of clubs, and East overtook with the ace. East returned the six of clubs, and it was clear to everybody at the table that East hoped to overruff the dummy on a third round of clubs.

West led a third club, and South put up dummy's ten of hearts to shut East out. This was, however, only the first step. South still held a losing club and had to find a way to avoid losing it.

It wasn't safe to lead a trump. West would take the ace of trumps and lead another club; and this time dummy would not be able to ruff high.

East had discarded a diamond on the third club, so it wasn't safe to lead three top diamonds. But South looked at this plan again and saw an advantage in it. He led out the ace and king of diamonds and continued with another high diamond from the dummy.

East ruffed, since otherwise South would discard his last club. South overruffed, completing the second step of his campaign.

Next South led the king of hearts. West refused the trick, knowing that his partner's last heart would be played on this trick.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Glass of milk a day for adults a good idea

Dear Dr. Thosteson: There is disagreement in our family as to the minimum amount of milk an adult should have and to how much he can have without detrimental effects.

I read somewhere that adults need no milk at all, and should not have more than a glass a day. My father says this is not so, and that no amount of skim milk can be detrimental. — L.M.

Well, I'll tell you. These "all-or-nothing" arguments are mostly a waste of time, but I'll try to give you a fairly sensible notion of what the facts are. Trying to establish some exact amount of milk for an adult is about like asking, "How much gasoline should a motor vehicle use per day?"

What are we talking about? A family car? A bus? A motor scooter? A double-bottom truck rig going across country?

People are at least as variable as motor vehicles. In fact, more so. There's the occasional person who is hypersensitive to milk, and should have none, or very little. (But he must take pains to see that he gets his calcium and other nutrients from other sources.)

At the other extreme, there's the person who insists "milk is bad for adults" and won't drink any. Maybe his diet otherwise includes enough calcium, protein and miscellaneous mineral traces to meet his needs.

And then again, maybe not. Maybe he is lacking in calcium, and among other things he has brittle bones and bruises easily and doesn't heal readily.

Or there's the fellow whose digestive tract goes into a war dance because he has a natural intolerance of milk, yet he insists on putting cream in his coffee, eating ice cream and other dairy products and won't give up dairy products because he "read somewhere that everybody needs milk."

For the great majority of us, like you or me or your adversary in the argument, about a glass a day will fill the basic requirements. If we miss a day, now and then, no harm. Or if somebody happens to like milk and wants to drink a quart or so a day, still no harm.

If he's fat, he ought to drink skim milk, not regular. If he's skinny, he can pick up some extra calories by using whole milk, not skim.

If we don't drink milk, but we get the same nutrients in ice cream, cheese, baked goods, cream in coffee or in other dairy products, what's the difference?

My great difference of opinion with the food faddists is that I don't agree that you "must" eat thus and so, or "must not" eat so and thus.

Same for milk. It's a good, useful, nutritious drink, and in my experience there are more people harmed by avoiding milk than are helped by avoiding it.

The whole violent argument makes about as much sense as the drunk who, just before he takes his ninth shot of booze for the day, pauses and says, "Wait. Gotta take my vitamin pill now."

What I mean is, let's be sensible about this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For about a month now I've been having small quick pains in the anal and vaginal region. I was wondering if it was anything to be worried about. I'm 17. I've heard it means you're supposed to have a hysterectomy. — C.D.

Most decidedly it is not a sign that you need a hysterectomy. Probably something quite minor, but I still recommend that you see your doctor. Something's not quite right.

5 priests get appointments

GREEN BAY — Five priests, some of whom have served in the Valley, have received new appointments from the chancery office.

The clergy appointments are as follows:

— The Rev. Jeremiah Worman, associate pastor of St. John, Menasha until Oct. 1 when he left for the armed forces, has been named administrator of St. James, White Lake, and St. Stanislaus, Langlade, until he receives a commission.

— The Rev. Francis P. Reinke, pastor of the two parishes taken over by Worman, has been named pastor of SS. Peter and Paul, Institute. He served as assistant at St. Therese, Appleton, at one time.

— The Rev. Bernard M. Geimer, pastor at Institute, to pastor of St. Hyacinth, Antigo.

— The Rev. Joseph A. Garstka, pastor at Antigo, is on sick leave.

— The Rev. Gerald T. Bouessa, administrator of St. Mary, Omro, continuing teaching assignment at Lourdes High in Oshkosh. He replaces the Rev. Allan Jirikovec, who has left the priesthood. Bouessa is a native of Neenah and has served as temporary chaplain at Community Hospital in New London and as assistant at Holy Name, Kimberly.

TV minister, Cox, to speak in Kaukauna

KAUKAUNA — The Rev. Don Cox, whose "Hour of Hope" television program is seen in this area each Sunday, will speak at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Kaukauna Assembly of God.

Don Cox

The TV program is seen at 7:30 a.m. Sundays over WLUC-TV, Channel 11. It has been on the air for a dozen years.

The speaker, whose circuit also includes colleges, universities and city-wide crusades, is a graduate of North Central Bible College, Minneapolis.

Tuesday's lecture is open to the public.

All Saints' Episcopal lists special service, visit by Bishop Brady

Thanksgiving services will be observed with communion at 10 a.m. Thursday at All Saints' Episcopal Church. Matins will be sung by the church Evensong Singers at 9:15 a.m.

It has also been announced that Bishop William Brady will make his annual visitation to All Saints Nov. 26. All children first grade and up who have not yet been admitted to communion by the bishop should meet with the Rev. Ralph Stewart, rector, at 11 a.m. Nov. 25.

Thanksgiving service is sponsored by LU Christian Fellowship

A Thanksgiving service for the community will be sponsored by the Lawrence University Christian Fellowship at 8:30 p.m. Sunday at the Memorial Chapel.

The speaker for the event will be John White, director of a Christian youth club in Chicago.

Greenville, Ellington, Center churches list holiday services

GREENVILLE — Thanksgiving services have been scheduled for Greenville, Ellington and Center churches.

The United Methodist Church, Greenville and Center, will have Thanksgiving eve service at 8 p.m. at the Faith Community Church, Greenville, along with the Hortonville Baptist Church. Speakers will be the Rev. Ross A. Pace of the Baptist Church and Rev. Melvin Hennrichs, pastor of the Greenville and Center Churches. Lay people will also participate.

St. Patrick Catholic Church, Stephenville, will have a special Thanksgiving mass at 10:30 a.m. At the offertory, parishioners will bring up clothing for the clothing drive and canned goods for food baskets to be distributed to the needy at Christmas time. The gifts will be decorated by the CCD children.

Trinity Lutheran Church, Ellington, and St. John Lutheran Church, Center, will have 8 p.m. services on Thanksgiving Eve.

Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church, Greenville, will have a 10:30 a.m. service and the Clayton Lutheran Church at 9:15 a.m. Thursday. Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church, Greenville, will have a Thanksgiving Day service at 9:30 a.m. with Rev. William Lewis, pastor of Bethlehem Lutheran Church, Milwaukee, as guest speaker.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Stephenville will have a 9 a.m. service and St. Mary Catholic Church, Greenville, an 8 a.m. mass on Thanksgiving Day.

Good Shepherd Lutheran will observe its 10th anniversary

Good Shepherd Lutheran Church will observe its 10th anniversary this weekend. The congregation, which last March dedicated new worship, office and Sunday school classroom facilities at 2220 E. College Ave., plans a modest observance.

Photographs, newspaper clippings and other displays illustrating events of the past decade will be posted in the hallways. The pastor, the Rev. H. P. Hilgendorf, will preach the same sermon he delivered when he conducted the congregation's first service on Nov. 18, 1962. It is entitled, "If I Had One Sermon to Preach."

Copies of the church bulletin from the first service will be distributed to worshippers as mementos.

There were 150 worshippers at the first service 10 years ago. The congregation formally organized on Nov. 29. The congregation's first building unit, consisting of four classrooms, offices and a gymnasium-chapel were completed earlier the same year, in October, and dedicated in January, 1963. The structure just dedicated this year expands the original building.

Current membership totals 335 families, 736 communicant members and 1,146 baptized members.

Human Development drive set

GREEN BAY — The third annual collection on behalf of the National Campaign for Human Development will be held Nov. 19. Similar collections will be made in Catholic churches across the U.S. during November.

The Human Development Campaign originally was part of the Diocesan Services Appeal budget. This year it will be separate.

The purpose of the campaign is to help eliminate the root causes of poverty through self-help programs. This is attempted through national informational and educational programs and through local and national fund raising projects.

About 25 per cent of the special collection remains in the diocese for local projects. During 1971, 13 groups and organizations in the diocese submitted applications for national and local funds.

Thanksgiving service in Green Bay features 2 national figures

GREEN BAY — Nationally syndicated commentator Paul Harvey and Miss America will be the featured guests at a non-denominational Thanksgiving Day service at 10 a.m. Thursday in the Brown County Arena.

In addition to Harvey's address and Miss Terry Ann Meeuwse's performance, the program will feature the West High Madrigal group, congregational singing and an inter-faith meditation.

Christian Scientists set public service on Thanksgiving Day

A public Thanksgiving service has been scheduled at 10:30 a.m. Thursday at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, 320 N. Badger Ave.

"The Nature of True Gratitude," will be the theme, and will include readings from Mary Baker Eddy.

There is no clergy in the Church of Christ, Scientist. Charles H. Cheney, first reader and Miss Sharon Alwert, second reader, will conduct the service.

Gideon International representative to talk

A representative of Gideons International, Delmar Newton, will discuss the work of his organization at the 8 and 10:45 a.m. services Sunday at First English Lutheran Church.

The organization is a non-sectarian group carrying out a broad ministry of Scripture distribution. The Gideon Bibles are distributed in 30 languages.

Survey of Lutheran churches shows 73.5 million members

GENEVA — Lutheran churches around the world have a combined total of 73.5 million members, according to a survey by the Information Bureau of the Lutheran World Federation.

The figure represents a slight increase — about 267,000 — over the 1971 total; however, it still is below the combined membership of 75.1 million counted in 1970.

While the survey totals are considered to be as precise as possible, it was noted that they resulted from a compilation of figures received both from churches where scientific statistical methods are employed and those where membership is determined by estimate and a variety of other procedures. Also in the case of several non-reporting churches, latest available figures were used.

In a general summary, the survey shows there are 59,149,434 members of Lutheran churches and an additional 14,425,401 Lutherans in Union churches in Germany — denominations with both Lutheran and Reformed membership.

Missionaries to poor countries face dilemma

BY BOB DOUGLAS

OTTAWA (AP) — You are a Christian missionary in a developing country.

You see discrimination practiced against a minority group. You see a small group of wealthy, politically-powerful people running the nation while the rest of the population is desperately poor.

What do you do? Some modern missionaries have spoken strongly against these injustices. Some even have openly advocated revolutionary policies.

Often this means jail or expulsion from the country by the established powers.

In an interview, four Roman Catholic missionaries active in different parts of the world looked at this issue and decided that it is not the role of the foreign missionary to tell the nationals what to do.

On the other hand, they said the missionary can have an indirect influence on events.

They were attending an intensive course on adaptation to cultures in developing countries. The course was sponsored by St. Paul University, a Catholic theological college in Ottawa, Canada.

The missionaries, all middle-aged, had been active for years in their own mission fields — Brother Louis Gallant in the Seychelles Islands in the Indian Ocean, Sister Mary Luke in Fiji, Rev. Malcolm Martin in Brazil and Rev. Thomas-Louis Fortin in India.

They were all North Americans — Brother Gallant from Grand Digue, N.B., Sister Mary Luke from Buffalo, N.Y., Father Martin from New York City and Father Fortin from Montreal.

"I feel very strongly as a foreigner that you can't get involved politically in the affairs of Brazil," said Father Martin, a mild, scholarly-looking man.

"As far as trying to resolve a situation or overcome a difficult problem such as poverty or the political pressures in the nation, those who would disagree with national policies are thrown in jail."

"You have to help your people become aware of their situation of poverty, injustice and so on. You must look at it in terms of how they themselves can take the situation in hand."

Others seemed to agree with this view.

Brother Gallant said a foreign missionary must face the fact that he is regarded as an intruder. He must win acceptance from the population before Lutheranism is the third largest grouping of Christians, following the Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox churches.

Eighty-four member churches of the Lutheran World Federation and 16 smaller "recognized congregations" have 54,743,152 members — an increase of about 1.2 million in the last year. (Two additional churches, in Indonesia and Korea with a total membership of some 8,500 have been accepted for LWF membership as of July 1973.)

In Germany, the birthplace of the Lutheran confession and still the area of its heaviest concentration, membership losses of considerable proportion were reported. The 14.4 million total of Lutherans in Union churches was almost an even million less than last year. In the Federal Republic, Lutheran churches have 14,537,983 members — a slight gain; but in the German Democratic Republic, the 5,315,000 total was down 370,000.

These losses were made up largely in Scandinavia, where more thorough statistical methods are being employed. In Sweden, for instance, a membership figure of 7 million used for several years has been revised to 7,776,000. Totals for Denmark (4,700,000), Finland (4,659,662) and Norway (3,800,000) also all represented increases.

Among other countries with large Lutheran constituencies, the United States showed a total of 8,822,555 — a drop of some 33,000. (The figure reported by Lutheran Council in the USA statisticians was 8,815,152, but this excluded two small church bodies that did not report.)

On a continental basis, a strong membership surge of recent years in Africa continued. The current total stands at 2,212,632, from 1,928,020 in 1971.

Notable among African countries was Madagascar, which reported a 3 per cent gain to 448,253. It was pointed out, however, that the current reported total was balanced against a 1971 figure which hadn't been changed for some time.

Increase in Africa

Tanzania, the African country with more Lutherans than any other, showed a continuing increase — 6 per cent, for a membership total of 568,444. South Africa, on the other hand, dropped from 518,934 last year to a current total of 511,973.

At the same time, the three Lutheran church bodies in South-West Africa (Namibia) registered a 10.6 per cent gain for a total of 332,781.

In Latin America, a sharp 9 per cent membership decline from 1970-71 seemed to have ended. Churches there reported an increase in the last year of about 10,000, to a current total of 973,262. Virtually all of this increase was in Brazil, where Lutheranism is concentrated and the membership figure rose from 813,125 to 822,487.

The Asian Lutheran membership total was 2,316,760, an increase of .8 of one per cent. A 13,000 loss among Indian churches (total 765,987) was offset by continuing increases in Indonesia, up some 28,000 to a current total of 1,409,175.

In Australasia, steady growth also was reported — from 527,466 last year to 538,731.

Information exchange proposed on hijackings.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Japan has called for an international exchange of information on terrorists as one means of curbing their acts.

Japanese Ambassador Toru Nakagawa made the informal proposal Friday night in the General Assembly's legal committee, which is debating measures to take against international terrorism.

Nakagawa said the first point in tackling the problem should be for U.N. members to adopt "effective domestic measures."

He said governments also should adhere to existing treaties to deal with hijacking and other acts endangering air travel, the assembly should condemn international terrorism and it should set machinery in motion to work out ways to suppress such terrorism.

Nakagawa said a proposed treaty for that purpose drawn up by the United States "requires our close scrutiny." But he stated no preference as to whether "a new committee or a body already in existence" should undertake such tasks.

Earlier, Soviet legal expert Dmitri N. Kolesnik said the assembly should ask the International Law Commission to draw up a convention to prevent international terrorism, tackling that job before anything else. The commission, a U.N. body of 25 jurists, meets in Geneva next May 7-July 13.

FBI plan on hijack thwarted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III says his agents were prepared to force their way aboard a hijacked Southern Airways jet before its final flight to Havana last week.

Shooting out the tires was but a prelude to boarding the plane at the Orlando, Fla., airport, but the three hijackers ordered the plane into the air and the FBI plan was thwarted, Gray said Friday.

In defense against criticism of how he personally directed attempts to stop the marathon hijacking, Gray said the agents were directly beneath the plane when the tires were shot out.

Some passengers had said FBI sharpshooters opened fire from across the runway while the DC-9 taxied near a fuel truck.

In a speech at George Washington University Law School, Gray said the agents fired at the tires from distances of as little as six inches, but no greater than 10 feet, while the plane was still motionless. There was no danger from the fuel truck, he said.

With a few among them injured, the passengers and crew were all returned safely from Cuba. The hijackers were seized in Cuba.

A $2 million ransom paid by the airline also remains in the hands of Cuban authorities, Gray said.

State campuses cool after protests

SUPERIOR, Wis. (AP) — Most of the black students involved in racial incidents at the University of Wisconsin-Superior during the week left the campus for home Friday, several days before the start of Thanksgiving vacation.

The campus at UW-Platteville was also reported quiet Friday after a protest by about 90 black students early in the day.

At Superior Friday, two black students were charged in Douglas County Court as a result of incidents on Wednesday which apparently sparked the situation, and three black students received verbal notice of temporary suspension from school.

Charlotte Mayo, 24, of Chicago, was charged with endangering safety by conduct regardless of life for her alleged part in an altercation with a white dormitory residence assistant.

Warren Pitts, 19, of Newark, N.J., was charged with battery after what authorities said was an altercation with a white head dormitory resident. Both Pitts and Miss Mayo were released on personal recognizance bonds.

UW-Superior officials would not identify the three students notified of temporary suspensions.

Chancellor Dr. Karl Meyer said the action is not official until letters are issued from his office to the students. The letters, he said, will explain the students' rights, including an opportunity for a hearing to determine if the temporary suspensions become permanent.

An incident late Wednesday, which authorities said was triggered by a misunderstanding between a white switchboard operator and a black student, eventually led to a sit-in in a dormitory lobby Thursday night.

Some 35 black students were bused to a hotel in Duluth, Minn., Thursday night in an attempt to cool tensions, and they met with school officials Friday after returning to the campus.

The meetings, which also included city officials and members of the student senate, were an attempt to reduce tensions and dispel rumors, Meyer said.

At Platteville, about 90 of the 130 black students on campus staged a dormitory sit-in.

Chancellor Bjarne Ullsvik said they were protesting some university policy, including dormitory living, food, out-of-state tuition and financial aids.

After the protest broke up peacefully, he said he would study the demands and reply.

In a separate meeting Friday, black leaders at UW-Madison met with leaders of political action groups to ask for help with "sympathetic actions" next week to protest the deaths of two black students at a Baton Rouge, La., college.

Peron gets permission for rally in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Former dictator Juan D. Peron, back in Argentina after 17 years of exile, received permission early today to address his followers at a mass rally that could be held tonight.

The ruling military junta that granted Peron's request also said he and his third wife, Isabel, could move from the airport hotel where they spent the night to a $96,000 suburban villa purchased for them last month by loyal Peronists.

Seven motorcycle police sped ahead, and police cars were on both sides of the Peron vehicle as it left the airport for the 30-minute drive to the house in Vicente Lopez. Trailing the Perons were a busload of police and more than 25 carloads of Peronists who had started a chant of "Peron, Peron, Peron" as the 77-year-old former president emerged from the hotel.

Peron's biggest victory, however, was the junta's approval for the rally.

Peron had protested the massive security measures covering his arrival Friday at Ezeiza International Airport, including an order that limited the welcoming delegation to 300.

Peronist leaders had predicted more than a million persons would go to the airport 30 miles west of Buenos Aires to greet the former populist president who ruled from 1946 to 1955. Thousands tried, forming at least nine marching columns, but they were turned back by some 30,000 troops ringing the airport and dispersed by volleys of tear-gas grenades.

Peron, who is expected to stay in Argentina about one week, spent his first day in the red-carpeted Presidential Suite of the Ezeiza Hotel, meeting with leaders of other political parties and Peronist union chiefs.

At the political meeting, he discussed the Peronist-organized National Civil Front, formed by Peron's Justicialista party, with nine leaders of smaller parties. If Peron can make the front a solid coalition, it could be the winner in general elections President Alejandro Lanusse has called for next March 11 to return the government to civilian rule.

Peron was ousted by a military coup in 1955 and was forced into exile. He spent the last 12 years in Madrid.

are appealing the convictions.

Two other defendants — Lee Weiner and John Froines — were acquitted of all charges.

The seven defendants, who called themselves the Chicago 7, were held in contempt of court with their lawyers, William Kunstler and Leonard Weinglass, at the end of the trial.

Judge Hoffman sentenced them to terms ranging from four years to two and one half months.

Seale's case was severed from those of the others during the trial, because of his frequent violent outbursts in court.

Bound and gagged in Hoffman's courtroom, Seale protested a variety of things, among them claims that Kunstler and Weinglass were incapable of fairly representing him.

Despite the rulings, Morton Stavis, attorney for the Chicago 7 and the lawyers, said he would press for a trial by jury on the contempt appeals.

Young Democrats urge test for Mrs. Westwood

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The executive board of the Democratic youth caucus of Wisconsin asked Democratic National Chairman Jean Westwood Friday to resign and offer herself for re-election.

If she remains in her post despite opposition from key Democrats, "the party will continue to be divided and angry," a resolution adopted by the board said.

The Democratic youth caucus of Wisconsin represents about 1,000 young persons throughout the state, according to state President George Wilbur of River Falls.

Wilbur said the executive board was neither opposing or endorsing Mrs. Westwood as national chairman.

"An election," he said, "would be much less explosive in outcome than the question of removal of Mrs. Westwood."

The Democratic youth caucus was known as the Young Democrats until it adopted its new name last summer.

Decibels and lawns

After several years of disputation, study and deliberation, the state has made effective a statutory limit on the noise that is permissible in the operation of the enormously popular snowmobile, and the state Department of Natural Resources has written detailed standards to test compliance with the legislature's intent. It is now illegal to sell new machines in this state that do not conform to the new noise limits.

The objective is to reduce the legal noise tolerance in future years, as the advances in technology that the manufacturers have assured our legislators are possible are realized.

This small boon will be welcomed by the thousands of Wisconsin folk who use these winter recreational machines, and more important, non-snowmobilers who have sometimes been annoyed by the blare of these powerful little gas-propelled vehicles on nearby roads or trails.

But there will be many stalwart and earnest citizens who will be curious about the legislature's selectivity in this regard. If this is a legitimate subject for the legislature's concern, and it surely is, there will be nominations for other protective statutes based on this precedent. Among the first of these, we would venture, are those thousands of householders who regard it as a fundamental right to sleep a little later on Sunday mornings, but who in late years have been denied it by the painfully high decibel count on the wastefully over-powered lawn-mowers down the block.

Wars of liberation

The U.N. General Assembly voted last week not only to condemn colonialism, an annual rubber stamp action, but this time to recognize the "legitimacy" of armed struggle against colonialism. The resolution had some odd backing as well as the opposition of the United States.

In explaining the United States' vote against the resolution, Ambassador George Bush said he felt support for the "liberation" armies was contrary to the United Nations Charter. Meanwhile the Soviet Republic and all its satellites approved the resolution.

Our attitude depends not only upon the definition of colonialism or how it is interpreted but exactly what time in history it is. The United States, strictly speaking, is correct in that a resolution adopted now has nothing to do with that army of liberation that fired the shot at Lexington, tried to hold Concord Bridge and defeated Cornwallis at Yorktown. There is the unpleasantness in Vietnam too where the Viet Cong sometimes are called forces of liberation.

But the technically correct situation for Russia makes the resolution's adoption sort of silly too. An outside observer might have easily found that the Hungarian freedom fighters and the unhappy Czechoslovakian military forces had the characteristics of armies of liberation.

The United Nations resolution really applies primarily if not exclusively to those territories under white minority rule by the governments of Rhodesia, South Africa and Portugal, although the United Nations lists 38 territories in all with populations of 30 million people. Nations voting against the resolution besides the United States were Portugal, South Africa, Britain and France. The issue is especially important to the 41 nation African bloc which forms the largest regional group in the U.N. Obviously because of their number they get a lot said about colonialism in the General Assembly.

Next spring there will be a conference in Oslo, Norway, "of experts for the support of the victims of southern Africa." Scandinavian countries have contributed $80,000 toward the conference and there will also be a "week of solidarity" set aside to acknowledge the struggle for "freedom, independence and equal rights."

It's likely that even within the next decade colonialism in Africa will be ended. The war in Vietnam should be finished too. But armies of liberation may be just beginning in many parts of the world, including Latin America and perhaps even Eastern Europe once again. How will the African nations, now so intense about colonialism on their own continent, feel about General Assembly backing of other such military efforts?

Are we becoming drug society?

In George Orwell's Brave New World there was a marvelous little pill which was available to the good citizens who followed the brainwashed teachings of the completely state controlled society placidly and obediently. The pill produced a marvelous euphoria in its users, all troubles were easily forgotten and there was no hangover.

Statistics show that while millions of Americans may not have read the book, millions have been looking for that type of little pill.

Alcohol has been one example and the most popular but it has its drawbacks and may even be more dangerous than popular opinion holds. Marijuana is heading for open legislation and it too has its promoters. There are the hard drug users and those who get off heroin by becoming addicted to methadone. There is the scandal concerning the number of barbiturates and tranquilizers produced in this country, a black market in them ranging to Mexico, the glue sniffers, those wild-eyed on amphetamines, the spray stuff in a plastic bag and a variety of other uppers, downers and in-betweeners.

The Washington Post reports that there is a new rage, use of the tranquilizer methaqualone which is sold under one brand name of Quaalude. It isn't particularly new, according to the Post. Surveys in Japan between 1963 and 1967 showed that half of the hospitalized drug addicts in that country were on methaqualone. The Medical Letter on Drugs and Therapeutics in 1966 reported that British doctors were finding cases of methaqualone addiction. But methaqualone is not yet listed as addictive by the Food and Drugs Administration in this country. Considering the growing use of the substance, which can be bought only on prescription, presumably the FDA will come to issue warnings on its use and casual prescription.

Regardless of whether the FDA or various drug companies have been remiss concerning methaqualone as well as other drugs which may have an addictive quality, the real problem is why so many Americans turn to palliatives.

Observers have blamed it variously upon the nuclear age, the rapid changes in society which have displaced many of us emotionally, permissive child raising, rigidity of the Establishment, television commercials and all sorts of problems people have with contrasts between their ideals and reality. We are bombarded by examples of the legal drug culture, from aspirin to instant cold remedies.

Perhaps we have been imbued with the notion that a cure for practically everything comes in a bottle in liquid or capsule form. It's part of the perfectability of man's philosophy but also comes from Americans' eternal optimism. How can we dispense with one without losing the other?

For no matter how many restrictions are formulated and labels applied, the ingenuity of the drug seeker will find substitutes.

Eliminate elections for Judiciary?

MADISON — If the citizen who reads about the steady flow of reports from state "task forces" and "advisory commissions" gets the idea that they tend to plow old ground and try to generate support for propositions previously discarded he has hit the bull's eye.

Sometimes there are signs of genuinely innovative enterprise in such citizen involvements invited by governors, presidents, mayors and other political leaders. At the moment, it appears that the Wisconsin gubernatorial task force on health care services and problems may be one of them.

But as a general rule, as shown in the school finance reform commission which is now reporting and the judicial improvement group that is publishing its findings in installments, the harvest is mostly a recapitulation of what has been said, urged, demanded, or attempted before without response.

Reform takes patience

Basic and significant reform typically requires patient educational effort. Yet one may wonder about the repetitious speeches of those who would eliminate the elective judiciary, for example, in the virtually total absence of any serious political response over a long period of effort by a succession of sponsors.

The reminder may ring harshly in the ears of the earnest advocates of the change, but the so-called "Missouri plan" of selecting judges by appointment on the advice of a judicial qualifications commission has been advanced repeatedly in this state. It has been met with only discouraging silence on the part of most of the citizen community and indifference in the legislature where such an initiative must come.

The judicial task force, echoing the concerns of some leaders of the bar over the years, says it worries about the problem of recruiting qualified judges under the free-for-all elective system that has prevailed since statehood. But inherent in its problem of communicating concern is the difficulty of providing examples without giving offense to that section of the bench that was recruited by original election, and possibly, that larger portion that owes its tenure to the appointment of a politician — namely, the governor of the state who is the constitutional possessor of authority to fill vacancies.

Evident also is the risk of offending the private citizens of a range of ideological convictions who are already concerned that their electoral rights are not broad enough to give them the kind of government they often desire, not to mention those who believe they can judge the character of a judicial candidate as competently as the members of the bar.

In a time of demonstrable disquiet about some problems of consumers with the legal establishment, as illustrated in the disquiet about liability insurance and probate procedure, it requires no capacity for prophecy to suggest that public opinion will be cool toward a reduction of electoral power.

Probably the most persuasive argument of the judicial reform group is the reminder that a judge or a candidate for judge who is involved in a contest finds that campaigning is costly. The report to the governor emphasizes the obvious — they do not put up most of the money themselves. They rely on unions, lawyers, businessmen, sometimes old political associates, and many others. Some donors will surely appear before them as they sit on the bench in future litigation.

It is unpleasant to contemplate such conflicts. But the judicial reform report appears to say that the issue exists in a vacuum. The brutal reality is that state legislators, national legislators, mayors, prosecutors, and scores of others also regard such dependence as part of their jobs. Conflicts and perils can be avoided by reform of the control laws. But they do not relate only or even primarily to the issue of judicial independence.

Caribbean governments move to set up an economic community with a common tariff and tax concessions to industries

Caribbean Islands plan common market

BY TONY COZIER

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — The English-speaking governments of the Caribbean area have ended a conference in Trinidad with agreement on the creation of a regional common market.

The former British colonies in the area have been members since May 1968 of the Caribbean Free Trade Area (CARIFTA) which has done a lot to boost regional trade and increase industrialization.

The conference decided to convert the free trade area into a common market by May, 1973. It laid the groundwork by approving a common tariff and common tax concessions to industries.

The smaller, less developed members of Carifta — the Windward and Leeward Islands and British Honduras — have complained that the free trade accord resulted in making the rich countries richer and the poor ones poorer.

They asserted that Barbados, Guyana, Jamaica and Trinidad and Tobago have enjoyed the benefits of the agreement and that their poor neighbors have been used as a dumping ground for goods from these affluent states.

The conference finally agreed to offer the Have-Not countries a number of concessions in the proposed common market.

Meanwhile, Barbados, Guyana, Jamaica and Trinidad-Tobago agreed to seek economic and diplomatic ties with the Cuban government of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Democrats may err on mandate

Having kept their numbers virtually intact despite the McGovern Presidential disaster, many liberal Democrats in Congress see this as a popular mandate to resist White House plans to cut Federal spending and do away with the unsuccessful social engineering programs of the Great Society. In doing this, however, Congress may be choosing a 1973-1976 battleground on much less favorable terrain than it imagines.

Such combativeness is easy to understand. Capitol Hill Democrats believe that their survival of McGovern's defeat bespeaks an extraordinarily affirmative degree of voter support. Few now trouble to remember the way in which they hedged their ideology during October campaigning.

There is an even more important variable in the equation. Democratic strength in Congress may be inflated because the Watergate and scandal issues — not ideology — held the GOP back from making substantial gains that, along with the Nixon landslide, would now have Capitol Hill Democrats well unnerved. The low voter turnout on Nov. 7 is the key. When balloting is particularly light, a somewhat unrepresentative Congress is elected, like the 80th Congress of 1946.

Sindlinger's explanation

So far, the press has done little probing of the drop-off of potential voters in the last two weeks of the Presidential campaign. Albert Sindlinger, the Philadelphia pollster whose company had the only continuous day-to-day telephone survey operation of the campaign, has come up with very interesting information. On Nov. 1, his indicated voter turnout was 83 million. Then the Watergate and peace chicanery issues began to bite. Ultimately, only 77 million people voted on Election Day.

According to Sindlinger's data, most of the more than five million registrants who decided not to vote in the last day or two were Republicans and Independents (mostly Northerners) turned off by the morality-in-government issue. Democrats by and large voted, Sindlinger says. The five million stay-at-homes were Nixon voters too disgusted with the Watergate mess to go to the polls, also knowing as they did that there was no danger of George McGovern's election. Women were disproportionately represented in this group.

A few days before the election, Sindlinger told reporters that the turnout was going to be "embarrassing" to the Republicans, and he was right. It was. The five million GOP and Independent non-voters would probably have split at least two-to-one for Republican Senators and Representatives, so that loss of this turnout probably cost the GOP Senate seats like those of Gordon Allott (who lost by 9,000 votes in Colorado), Cleb Boggs (who missed by 2,500 in Delaware) and Henry Hibbard (who lacked just 1,600 in Montana). On the House side, these Watergate stay-at-homes probably lost the GOP 10-15 close House seats.

Watergate issue hurt

As disgusted Republicans on Capitol Hill have been telling one another, the Watergate and kindred Administration scandals put them on the defensive and helped sour any ideological offensive. Sindlinger's data now suggests that it also cost them millions of votes from Republicans too mad to go to the polls.

Such anger does not augur well for the Administration in terms of day-to-day liaison and White House cooperation with Congressional Republicans. But as far as public opinion is concerned, the Democrats, too, ought to be a little wary. Public disgust with the Watergate mess, and the resultant drop-off in the GOP turnout is not the same thing as support for the Democrats' policy of spend, spend, and spend, especially when that outlay is on behalf of special interest programs that command nothing but a yawn in Peoria or Levittown.

Congressional Democrats can use the Watergate and scandal issues in 1973 investigations as they used them in autumn 1972 campaigning, and probably profit accordingly. But if they interpret November's results as a mandate for big spending, they may be courting an unexpected rebuke in 1974.

People's forum

Footnote to election

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

With the post election wrap-ups coming to an end, I would like to add my footnote. More than 13,000 people voted for me on November 7th and to them I would like to say "Thank You." A lot of really great people helped me out with two to twenty dollar contributions, not to mention the hours donated to factory-gating and leaflet dropping.

Even in defeat there are always some small victories; for instance, our return on our investment was rather good. For every 16 cents that we spent, we received a vote as compared to our opponent who spent 42 cents per vote. For all of us who were directly involved in the campaign, it was an educational experience that cannot be taught from a book; but for our opponent, it was just another election. We based our campaign on the issues and the non-impressive voting record of the incumbent; whereas, he avoided the issues and brought nothing new to the public.

Judging from the voting pattern, it would seem reasonable to assume that most of the people that voted for me also voted for Senator McGovern. If this is true, all of us can go to bed with a clear conscience, knowing that we did what we could to stop the killing in Southeast Asia.

Michael P. Mack

Hortonville School District struggles with overcrowding

HORTONVILLE — Student enrolment will grow, but variable school schedules, such as the split shift or 45-15 year-round classes, have had poor receptions in other school district's where they have been tried, a panel of educators told about 500 persons Thursday night.

The Hortonville School District, facing overcrowded conditions, will continue to draw people from nearby urban areas.

The comments were made by Jan Peterson, superintendent Winneconne School District, which has used the split shift schedule for two years; Fred Kaufman, business manager of the Plymouth schools, who conducted a study of the 45-15 schedule; and Ken Thiene of the East Central Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, who spoke on projected population in the area.

The public informational meeting was sponsored by the Parents-Teachers Organization (PTO), and the Hortonville Education Association (HEA).

Regardless of which alternative the district chooses, Peterson said, "get your facts from the people who know what they're talking about."

He told listeners that Winneconne's split shift plan has raised the per pupil cost of education, while lowering the educational quality.

After voters defeated four referendums since 1968, the split shift was initiated.

Now, he said, high school students start class at 7 a.m., and finish at 12:12 p.m., while junior high students start at 10:35 a.m. and complete classes at 4:42 p.m. Elementary students attend school from 8:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m., he added.

With high school periods shortened to 47 minutes each, and junior high classes set at 42 minutes, the high middle school students are losing 38 and 21 days of classes a year respectively. "Don't tell me that's what you call quality education, because it isn't. We've had to lower all our standards" he said.

With the staggered schedules, "There isn't such a thing as extra activities anymore," he added. "The split shift has destroyed this part of our school. Our school spirit is at a low ebb."

Students attitudes are "definitely worse," he added, and teacher efficiency has "lost considerably."

Some of the advantages to the schedule he mentioned included the separation of junior and senior high school students, aiding discipline, the opening of vocational shops to middle school students, maximum use of facilities, and the relief of most crowded classrooms.

But with the disadvantages, he mentioned the rising transportation costs and the addition of employees to the food service and custodial staff.

Some students are picked up by buses for classes as early as 5:45 a.m., while some are taken home as late as 6:30 p.m., he said.

Some routes are repeated as often as eight times daily, and costs for the busing program increased $35,000 this year, nearly a third of the previous year's $104,000.

The district's food service program was revamped to include breakfast, lunch, and an afternoon break, with more employees needed to run the food service program.

There is now less day work and more night work done by the custodial staff, which also raises payrolls, he added.

Kaufman said that the 45-15 plan, which schedules students in class for 45 days, on vacation for 15 days, and in staggered groups, was found "not to be practical or desirable" in his district.

The year around classes caused family and educational hardships and problems, he said, and was not "financially feasible."

With added overhead and transportation costs, besides a larger staff and more salaries for administration and clerical personnel, the program would cost $250,000 more than the present schedule in five years.

Rules praised for governing insurance ads

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A set of proposals to govern advertising of accident and sickness insurance is a needed step "that leads to nowhere without strong enforcement," state Rep. Harout Sanasarian told the state insurance commissioner Friday.

Sanasarian, a Milwaukee Democrat, testified that the important issue is not a proposed new set of rules, but the willingness of Stanley DuRose to enforce regulations already on the books.

Sanasarian was joined by several other witnesses who praised the commissioner's initiative at drawing up the rules.

The 23-pages of proposed rules involve an increase in the factual content of insurance advertising. They are designed to prevent misleading advertising methods.

One rule would ban entirely testimonials and endorsements as a method of advertising accident and sickness insurance in the state. Also required would be information from an insurance company comparing old and new policies when the company is trying to sell new coverage to a customer.

DuRose, in a news release last month, called the proposals "the most significant regulation" in the past decade. He predicted they would "revolutionize nationwide the merchandising of accident and sickness insurance" if enacted.

Atty. Gen. Robert Warren submitted a written statement to the hearing, calling the proposals "a much needed solution to the problems" in insurance advertising.

Warren suggested, however, that insurance agents and not just insurers be specifically mentioned under provisions of the rules.

A community survey in Plymouth found that law enforcement personnel, student employers and farmers opposed the schedule.

With only remedial summer school classes deducted from the budget, cost increases for a 45-15 school include plant maintenance, plant operation, special teachers' travel expenses, transportation of private school students, supervisory personnel and specialized instructors salaries.

In his talk Thiene said that in 10 years, the Hortonville School District "will still be the fastest growing area in the metropolitan area."

Hortonville School Supt. Marvin Oby said that the high school enrollment will increase about 60 students next year, and "If we can't get more classrooms to rent, I think the only answer is the split shift."

The district is well below in bonding limit, with just less than $1 million in debt, and a legal ceiling of $6 million.

He also said that 1,800 students in the present school complex is "just too many," and adding more rooms to the present building would create a larger problem.

The district presently rents four classrooms in the village Community Hall and the Catholic school, but "I think we'd have to add 24 to feel some relief from the overcrowding," Oby added.

Courts

A 21-year-old Appleton man was found guilty Thursday on charges of carrying a concealed weapon, possession of marijuana and driving after revocation by a 12-member jury in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Mark R. Vandertie, 120 E. Wisconsin Ave., was found not guilty on one count of cashing a worthless check. Judge Nick F. Schaefer ordered a presentence investigation and scheduled sentencing for Dec. 1.

Vandertie was arrested by Winnebago County police Saturday afternoon after a citizen complained that the defendant was shooting a pistol along the bank of the Fox River behind the 600 block of River Road. Following the arrest, Vandertie was turned over to Appleton police, who found a small bag of marijuana in his jacket.

The driving after revocation charge stemmed from a Sept. 4 arrest in the 300 block of N. Linwood Avenue, while Vandertie was accused of cashing a $20 worthless check at an Appleton service station on Sept. 7.

Refresher class set in tax form preparation

An income tax preparation refresher course for lawyers, accountants and other persons who prepare income tax returns in a professional capacity will be offered through the University of Wisconsin Extension.

The program will be offered from 4:30 to 5:20 p.m. on Dec. 5, 7, 12, 14 and 19 at the Calumet, Outagamie and Winnebago county courthouses and the University of Wisconsin Center Fox Valley. The fee is $21.

Enrollment is made by mailing name, address, professional interest and fee to the Institute of Continuing Legal Education for Wisconsin, 1401 Law School, UW-Madison.

Institute for foremen starts at UWCFV

"Supervisory Skills," a three-day institute designed for lead men, assistant foremen, foremen and office supervisors, will be presented from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 28 and Dec. 5 and 12 at the University of Wisconsin Center-Fox Valley.

The course will be conducted by the University of Wisconsin Extension, Department of Business and Management, in cooperation with the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce, Neenah-Menasha Chamber of Commerce and the Appleton Personnel Association. Certificates will be presented to participants following the final sessions.

Appleton youth serious after one-car crash

A 17-year-old Appleton boy is in serious condition at St. Elizabeth Hospital after suffering head and chest injuries in a one-car accident in Dale about 2:15 a.m. today.

The accident victim is Dale R. Flunker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flunker, 3332 W. First St.

According to Outagamie County police, Flunker was going east on U.S. 10, when he apparently hit the shoulder on the right side of the road, lost control of his car and slid along the left side of the highway into the yard of a Dale resident.

Police said the car traveled about 270 feet after hitting the shoulder and that it also struck a power pole, snapping it off.

The car came to rest against a house belonging to David Thiel.

The Flunker boy was alone in the car, according to police.

Cigarettes via mail carry tax

MADISON — Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren has advised consumers that purchasing cigarettes at a reduced price through the mail does not exempt them from paying Wisconsin tax.

Warren explained that firms based in North Carolina are advertising cigarettes at a much lower price than they are available in Wisconsin. He said North Carolina has a very low tax on cigarettes.

In Wisconsin, the purchaser is still liable for a cigarette tax of $1.60 per carton, Warren said.

Warren said the Jenkins Act, a federal law, requires firms selling cigarettes to register with the federal government and to submit to each state

Last days of Tolstoy

7:30 — 9 Channel 38 — Playhouse New York presents "The Last Journey," James Forsyth's dramatization of the last days of Russian novelist Count Leo Tolstoy. The play has Harry Andrews portraying an elderly Tolstoy as a rebel against pre-revolutionary Russian society and denouncing all his titled wealth. Against the background of the last days of Czarist Russia, Tolstoy's own family becomes divided in their loyalties. After the film, Tolstoy's only living relative, his daughter Alexandra, 88, comments on the division within the family and life in Russia in the early 1900s.

4-5:30 — Channels 11-9 — Wide World of Sports is in Calgary, Alberta, Canada, for some figure skating performances and in Gardena, Calif., with the National Championship Motorcycle Race.

8-8:30 — Channel 2 — Divorce is the subject of The Mary Tyler Moore Show, with Mary's good friends separating, then deciding on a divorce. That's bad enough but suddenly the husband (Bert Convy) wants to take Mary to dinner to talk. Then he wants to take her out again — and again, and her conscience begins to hurt. So she decides to ask his estranged wife for permission.

8:30-9 — Channel 2 — If The Bob Newhart Show has a different look, it's because they are running the pilot, which was made last January when Suzanne Pleshette had a different hair style, and the apartment was decorated differently and the show had a different look. It's all about Bob and Emily wanting a baby and something she says because she needed to say something at a party.

70 'sneak' previews for murder mystery

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Seeking greatest possible advance exposure, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will hold sneak previews of "They Only Kill Their Masters," in 70 cities before Thanksgiving openings in 475 situations, one of the biggest saturations in MGM history, according to Bill Madden, vice president of domestic sales.

The decision to conduct sneaks on a nationwide basis was prompted by results from three sneaks in the Los Angeles area which produced the most favorable comment for any MGM film in recent years, Madden said. After the mass Thanksgiving openings, the film will be spread into in-depth bookings for Christmas in all important markets.

"They Only Kill Their Masters," a James Goldstone-William Belasco Production, stars James Garner, Katharine Ross, Hal Holbrook, Harry Guardino and June Allyson. Belasco produced and Goldstone directed the contemporary murder mystery.

'Skyjacked' openings prove money-makers

MGM's "Skyjacked," starring Charlton Heston, turned in $10,626 in its first five days, in Panama, according to Paul Branca, manager of MGM's Panamanian operation.

"Skyjacked" has broken all existing records at Panama City's Metro Theatre.

In addition to its Panamanian success, "Skyjacked" opened at the same time at the Republican Theatre in Lima and turned in a $7,123 first five-day gross there.

ABC shakes up schedule

NEW YORK (AP) — The ABC television network, in a midseason programming shakeup, has announced cancellation in January of two regular Saturday night shows — "Alias Smith and Jones" and "The Sixth Sense." They will be replaced by "Here We Go Again" about two newlyweds who live in the same neighborhood as their former spouses, and "A Touch of Grace" about a newly widowed but "with-it" woman who lives with one of her married children.

Four other regularly scheduled shows will move into new time slots and dates. ABC also said "Kung Fu," a new Western shown at irregular intervals this year will become a regular Thursday night series from 9 to 10 p.m., beginning in January.

State will need new private jobs 1970 sale of land to UWGB to be probed

KAUKAUNA — William Kidd, secretary of the state Department of Business Development, said Wednesday that 385,000 new jobs will be needed in Wisconsin by 1980 and that these jobs will have to be generated by the private sector of the economy.

The state government employment rolls, which have grown far more rapidly than private employment, have been frozen until July 1, 1974, he said, and after that time public employment will increase at the same rate as jobs in business and industry.

Kidd told the Kaukauna Rotary Club that his job was to be an advocate for business interests within the state administration, to insure that the state's business climate was healthy enough to support the growing work force.

The only way to create these 358,000 jobs, he said, is to make state industry and service attractive to outside investors. Kidd then explained one device for promoting investments, the industrial development revenue bond, which can be used to finance up to $5 million worth of buildings, equipment or pollution abatement facilities, and which enjoys the same federal tax exemption as municipal bonds.

Then bonds have been floated in other states to finance billions of dollars of industrial expansion, but have not been widely used in Wisconsin, he said, even though the state legislature approved them in 1969.

Kidd said only a "slight problem" stands in the way of revenue bonding in Wisconsin — a state Supreme Court's test of the bond's constitutionality. So far, the bonds have only been used for small capital improvements, which did not require public sales. In Marinette, for example, revenue bonds were bought by local banks in a private placement.

But brokerage houses will not handle a large public offering of the bonds unless their constitutionality under state laws is tested and proven, he said.

About $100 million in possible revenue bonding projects are waiting for a court test in this state, he said. The City of Whitewater and the Hawthorne-Melody Dairy were seeking a declaratory judgment from the court this summer, but the case has become bogged down.

In August, the Kaukauna City Council approved a plan to offer the bonds to the Thilmany Pulp & Co. to help finance the mill's current water pollution abatement program. The resolution "agrees in principal" with the bonding plan, subject to the outcome of a court test.

Unlike bonds for school and municipal building, the development bonds are not backed by the taxing power of a community and do not affect a municipality's bonded indebtedness. In Kaukauna's case the city could use the bonds to buy Thilmany's water clarification system, and then lease it back to the company at a rent sufficient to pay principal and interest.

Kidd was named secretary of the newly created department in early September. He had been chairman of the board of Western Publishing Co., Racine, until he retired in 1971. He was also a vice president of Johnson Wax Co.

1970 sale of land to UWGB to be probed

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The sale of 11½ acres of land to the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay by the Inland Steel Development Corp. will be probed by the Currie Commission investigating state real estate practices.

The sale by the firm, tied to David Carley — later a UW Regent appointed by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey — is among three real estate transactions apparently conducted without independent appraisals of the worth of the land, according to information provided the Currie Commission by member Carol Toussaint.

Mrs. Toussaint said she had asked UW officials for real estate records in the wake of the commission investigation of the purchase by the UW of Lowell Hall, a failing private dormitory owned by Robert Levine, now state draft chief.

Atty. Gen. Robert Warren has charged that the state paid $3.55 million on a building which a later appraisal shows was worth only $2 million at the time. Currie Commission members have maintained that their probe shows the building was worth $2.8 million at most at the time of the sale.

No appraisals were obtained prior to the purchase.

The Currie Commission, headed by retired State Supreme Court Chief Justice George Currie, was named to investigate real estate practices after state newspapers reported a series of questionable transactions, including Lowell Hall.

Mrs. Toussaint said she had asked the UW for the real estate information, coupled with appraisal records, after the Lowell Hall probe with the thought that other such sales might have taken place in the past.

Two of the deals questioned involve Madison properties apparently owned by the dummy building corporation which financed UW construction before direct state bonding was legalized in Wisconsin.

The Green Bay transaction, she said, took place in September, 1970. Carley was named a regent in May, 1971. The 11.43 acres of land, sold for an unexplained "owner's cost" of about $54,000, apparently was conducted without an independent appraisal of its worth, she said.

The land is carried on the UW records as having been used for an access road at the campus.

Mrs. Toussaint also won the backing of the commission to probe state real estate transactions involving housing rented to or provided state employees by state agencies.

The inquiry, which will center on the UW System, the Department of Natural Resources and the Department of Health and Social Services, will involve both free housing supplied some state staffers and rental quarters also provided.

Commission member Lawrence Katz of Milwaukee pointed out that most state workers offered such housing are in high income brackets and that some state agencies may use such housing as an additional income factor to keep such workers from taking jobs elsewhere.

Katz, Mrs. Toussaint and Daniel Neviaser also pushed for studies of the possibilities of creating state agencies to parallel the workings of the federal General Services Administration and the General Accounting Office.

The GSA handles federal, purchasing, leasing, rental and selling of properties. The GAO serves as an auditing agency, investigating past performance of federal agencies.

The studies proposed are aimed at the proposed final report to Lucey and the Legislature outlining state procedures for the future which can avoid irregularities in real estate dealings.

The commission also heard that a professional appraisal firm hired to conduct studies of the past worth of the National Guardian Life Insurance Co. building in Madison has completed its work.

The building was purchased by the state Investment Board without an appraisal for $625,000 in 1963 and sold to six private investors five years later for the same price. The investors were required to make a down payment of only $30,000, and were given an Investment Board mortgage for $595,000 at less than the prevailing prime interest rate, the commission has been told.

The "reconstructed" appraisals indicate the building was worth between $565,000 and $610,000 in 1963, and between $555,000 and $610,000 in 1968, according to the study.

The commission also heard that an estimate by real estate brokers made for the insurance company in 1958 showed the property was worth $623,600.

Madison Ald. Eugene Parks told the commission many Madison area officials and residents have a sense of "outrage" over the National Guardian Life building sale by the Investment Board and other real estate transactions uncovered by the press.

Parks called for public involvement in state real estate dealings, saying few people know how and why such business is transacted.

As alderman for the district in which Lowell Hall is located, he said no state official ever told him the state was considering buying the building. Had the officials bothered, he said, he would have raised a number of questions — including the key question as to whether appraisals had been obtained.

Parks said the image given to state real estate dealings is that a favored few with top level political contracts receive favored treatment.

The state needs are legal requirement that local officials and the public have a voice in such dealings, he said. The state also needs a counterpart to the federal Small Business Administration to insure that small scale businessmen have a chance to become involved in state contracts, purchases and sales, he told the commission.

New Polish trade pact revealing agreement is the candid admission that Moscow's planned economy for its Eastern European allies — no longer 100-proof satellites — has come to the end of the road. In short, Moscow is saying to Poland: Stuck with us on foreign policy but go your own way in everything else.

The way the negotiations came about reveals the passion for speed. The Polish government was prepared to send its top-level trade team here early next year to hammer out the new agreement after a preliminary session in Warsaw with Secretary of Commerce Peter G. Peterson last August.

But White House political operatives, eyeing the huge Polish-American vote, saw a marginal plus in starting the negotiations before the election. A cable went to Warsaw proposing the talks for the first week of November. Thadeusz Olechowski, Polish minister of trade, was at that moment in Moscow for a meeting of COMECON, the Communist economic bloc. He immediately rearranged his schedule and flew to Washington. After four days face-to-face, Peterson and Olechowski, a skillful, Westernized Pole who speaks five languages, signed the new agreement Nov. 8.

Preceding the signing, U.S. negotiators were amazed how fast one potential problem after another disappeared.

proves Warsaw is thinking in long terms indeed about new industrial cooperation with the U.S.

Likewise, the agreement guarantees a direct relationship between American companies and Polish citizens, without having to go through a Communist bureaucracy. This should mean that an American enterprise will be able to hire Polish labor, contract directly with Polish suppliers for telephones and office equipment and, with its Polish industrial partner, buy raw materials and sell finished products.

These agreements are on top of more routine arrangements finally settling the pre-war Polish bond indebtedness and giving Poland access to U.S. Export-Import Bank credits. The Poles also agreed — for the first time with the U.S. — on third-country arbitration to settle disputes that inevitably will arise out of the new pact.

'Shared control' a problem

In strictly commercial terms, far too much is expected from the new agreements. In fact, American companies are going to think long and hard before they invest stockowners' money in "shared" control of industrial enterprises in a Communist country.

The real point is not short-run economics, but long-run politics. However Moscow explains it away, COMECON has failed to fulfill the needs of Eastern European economies.

With Moscow itself leading the way with Washington, these Communist countries can wheel and deal on their own with the towering U.S. economy. Judging from the new Warsaw pact, the partnership between Soviet-bloc Communism and free-enterprise America marks a political breakthrough of vast dimensions.

'We are too poor —'

Asked to reconcile this free enterprise-Communist partnership in the production of goods for profit, one Polish negotiator replied laconically: "We are too poor to stick to Marxist orthodoxy."

Lincoln school's worth defended by director

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — Because of apparently growing public doubts about the value of institutional training of juvenile delinquents and a reluctance of some Wisconsin magistrates to commit young offenders to its care, the management of the newly opened Lincoln State School in north central Wisconsin is concerned about its future.

Paul Imler, superintendent of the institution in Lincoln County, related in a report covering the first full year of its operation that such factors "contribute substantially to a certain uneasiness and some sense of discouragement among staff."

The report was submitted to the supervising state Board of Health and Social Services.

Imler stoutly defended the usefulness of the costly new facility he was chosen to run.

He said he is unsure about the reasons for the decline in the number of commitments from the juvenile courts, but noted that "there is a current conviction in some areas, the State of Massachusetts being a prime example, that institutional treatment of children is at the best outmoded and at the worst a harmful experience for children."

"The fact is," he told his superiors, "much as does a hospital provide total physical care for a patient, so does the progressive juvenile institution provide a totality of treatment not duplicated in the community."

The Lincoln school is coeducational, receiving girls as well as boys, under special legislation approved last year at the request of the state Division of Corrections.

The institution chief acknowledged that the admission of girls as well as boys caused some problems, in part because the staff orientation had been toward boys, but that they were effectively resolved.

He summarized the institution policy as one of assuring that the program "should be as natural as possible with sufficient safeguards to ensure that children with poor inner controls do not indulge in behavior which is totally unacceptable within the community."

The institution receives boys and girls from the 48 northern counties of the state, and experience has shown that those children have stronger family and community ties than those from urbanized areas, he told his superiors.

Licensing problem bypassed

Thus, the question of Poland obtaining new American licensing for advanced technology, potentially a source of grave trouble, was swiftly bypassed. The licensing question is critical, because once a relatively backward nation obtains the license for new productive techniques it no longer needs a Western partner. Thus, Poland's agreement to finesse licensing

Salaries of the county employees within the bargaining unit will be hiked by 2 per cent, according to that contract.

Supervisors adopted that plan, 38-4. Both contracts go into effect Jan. 1.

At issue in the county courthouse pact was a feature reducing the work week to 37½ hours, taking into account the hours of Daylight Saving Time in the warm weather months.

Two supervisors, Robert Putzer, Oshkosh, and Robert Johnson, towns of Clayton and Vinland, argued that fewer hours slight the public. Putzer argued that those offices which close now should remain open over the noon hour. Johnson said he would like to see

Board OKs contracts with county employes

OSHKOSH — The Winnebago County Board Thursday approved labor agreements with the courthouse employes and highway department.

Although some minor opposition developed over one feature of the courthouse employee's contract, the board was generally satisfied with the terms of the agreements as submitted by the labor relations panel.

The highway edpartment pact, adopted unanimously, allows for a 16-cent per hour increase on all steps of the compensation plan. Overall, county Corporation Counsel Gerald Engelender said, the agreement provides benefits of slightly more than 5 per cent higher than those in effect in the current year.

the courthouse open until 5 p.m. all year.

But Ronald Farrel, labor relations committee, said his panel had noted that public business transacted at noon was virtually nil. This was taken into account before the committee made its recommendation, he said.

But Putzer, persisting, asked for a study of public traffic at noon to be filed with the board at its December session.

Farrell suggested that keeping some of the lesser offices of public interest open over the noon hour might not be worth it, because of the nature of the business they perform.

Other benefits to highway department employees in the new contract are an additional $10 of county-paid hospital insurance for employees under the family plan; an additional $5 county share toward the obligation of the Wisconsin Retirement fund; and appropriate language to protect the country's interest in the fair share agreement plan.

New benefits in the courthouse employes contract include the same fair share agreement clause and amending the bargaining unit to include several persons working for the county who had not been covered before.

Salary adjustments will be taken from a $290,000 fund included in the 1973 budget.

How to file bills for Medicare

"It's easier for me to save my medical bills for the entire year and send them in at one time." This is heard quite often at the Social Security office.

The practice is all right if you don't mind waiting for your money. Because of the large volume of claims that are filed after the first of the year, the insurance carriers who process the claims are so busy that there usually is a delay in the payment of claims the office warns.

To avoid delay in payment you should file your claim as soon as you have accumulated $50 in medical bills in the calendar year. Then, periodically throughout the year, send in claims for your additional medical bills.

If you have not filed a claim for medical services received during the period Oct. 1, 1970 through Sept. 30, 1971, the deadline for filing a claim is Dec. 31, 1972. Services received after Sept. 30, 1971 can be claimed until Dec. 31, 1973.

Medical expenses incurred during the last three months of the year which can be counted toward your $50 deductible for that year can also be counted toward your $50 deductible in the year following. So, even if you have not met your $50 deductible before October, be sure and send all your medical bills for covered services in October, November, and December.

Remember, the answers to your Medicare questions and assistance in filing Medicare claims is as near as your telephone. The staff at your Social Security office will be glad to answer your questions and assist you with your Medicare problems.

The Appleton office is located at 1801 N. Richmond Street, telephone 739-7744. The office hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Bruce Purdy named business gifts head for Lawrence drive

Appleton businessman Bruce B. Purdy has been named chairman of the Business Gifts Committee of the newly launched Lawrence Leadership Fund, a major capital gifts campaign at Lawrence University.

George Banta III, general chairman of the $10 million drive, made the announcement of Purdy's appointment.

Purdy is vice president of Appleton Wire Works and a Lawrence alumnus. He will direct the committee in seeking gifts from business and industrial firms in the Fox Cities. As the campaign progresses, Purdy's committee is expected "to generate substantial support for the campaign," Banta said.

The Lawrence Leadership Fund has set a goal of $10 million to increase endowment and to build, expand and renovate the Lawrence physical plant, including a new library, an addition to the Worcester Art Center, a new floor to Youngchild Hall of Science and the renovation of the oldest building on campus, Main Hall.

Supervisors adopt Outagamie budget

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

After four days and one night of arguing, squabbling and occasional lucid debate, the Outagamie County Board has adopted a 1973 budget calling for a tax rate of $4.97 per $1,000 of equalized valuation, one cent less than the current rate.

On a 30-2 vote, which came at 5 p. m. Friday, supervisors approved a spending package of $15,692,434, which calls for a local tax levy of $5,603,775. Supvs Eugene Kloes and Charles Wussow, at odds with board actions most of the week, cast the dissenting votes.

Both the spending figure and the levy are down slightly from the original budget proposal, mainly the result of a $201,000 deletion from the highway budget. Another $15,000 was cut on the final day from the contingency fund, bringing that total down to $35,000.

The only other major budget change in the final day was in the approval of proceeding with a microfilming program for the county. Cost to the county would be $20,000, with that amount being matched by federal funds. To offset the expenditure, another $20,000 was taken from revenue sharing funds.

In passing the budget, board fiscal conservatives also beat back an effort to use more of the federal revenue sharing funds to further reduce the tax levy.

A motion by Kloes to add $100,000 to the $195,000 in revenue sharing already earmarked for use next year was defeated 22-12.

The budget

|              | 1972         | 1973         |
|--------------|--------------|--------------|
| Expenditures | $13,192,969 | $15,692,434 |
| Revenues     | 7,970,670    | 10,088,658   |
| Tax Levy     | 5,222,299    | 5,603,775    |
| Tax Rate     | $4.98       | $4.97       |

Kloes argued that the purpose of revenue sharing was to reduce taxes at the local level. He was backed by Supv John Kellogg, who said the people expect that revenue sharing is for the purpose of reducing their tax bills.

Shiocton Supv Ervin Conradt supported County Executive Alvin Woehler's contention that the funds should go for priority capital outlays. "The expense for our solid waste disposal plant is there whether we use revenue sharing or put it on the tax levy," Conradt said. "Either way, revenue sharing is helping reduce the levy."

Earlier, the board had approved earmarking $700,000 in revenue sharing funds to finance the solid waste shredding plant the county will purchase from Allis-Chalmers Co.

The county anticipates receiving $743,613 in revenue sharing this year and $800,000 in 1973. The money must go into a trust fund and then may be transferred back into the budget against some operating and capital costs.

Woehler had proposed taking $243,000 from this year's revenue sharing allotment to cover anticipated deficits in the county health center and Department of Social Services.

However, Woehler told the board, it now appears the total deficits in the two departments may total less than $100,000. The original projections were made in August.

With the commitments now made against the revenue sharing trust fund, the county still will have a minimum of $405,000 remaining.

Woehler told the board, "We still have a human needs factor to meet and I hope the next priority factor we consider is a new mental facility."

The executive said he estimated the cost of a new treatment facility for the mentally ill to cost about $450,000.

Deposits of traffic funds investigated in Calumet

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

CHILTON — While some Calumet County officials are trying to keep a veil of secrecy around reported financial discrepancies in county traffic police accounts, other officials insist there was nothing more than a "mistake" or sloppy bookkeeping.

No official questioned by The Post-Crescent Friday said publicly there was a fund shortage, although the following related information was uncovered.

Marilyn Glysch, municipal auditor for the State Bureau of Municipal Audit, admitted she and others doing a routine, annual Calumet County audit turned over certain information to Dist Atty Franklin J. Schmieder Nov. 9. She said she could not reveal the nature of the information.

The county board's protection of persons and property committee met in secret session last Monday with Miss Glysch and Schmieder to "discuss methods of depositing funds" from the traffic department. A new depositing system was devised, according to meeting minutes.

Capt. Victor Juno, head of the county traffic police, Friday morning deposited $1,485.31 with the county treasurer to be credited to his department's parking ticket and accident report accounts.

Schmieder said he has met with Juno and protection committee members and he and supervisors are satisfied there was no criminal wrong doing.

Supv. Carl Wilberscheid of New Holstein, committee chairman, flatly refused to discuss the issue Friday. He would not confirm or deny fund discrepancy reports received by The Post-Crescent.

"I'm not in a position to give you a true picture. I would have to be giving you hearsay information," Wilberscheid said. "In the interest of fair play to everyone concerned, there will be no release at this time." He promised there will be a public statement, possibly at the next county board meeting.

County Board Chairman Gilbert Hipke, New Holstein, was at the secret meeting and he refused to comment until after he sees a final audit report.

Everybody seems to think there must be something absolutely wrong, Hipke said. "We know of absolutely nothing wrong at this particular time authentically."

Supv. Elmer Federwitz, rural Chilton, said he wasn't at the Nov. 13 protection committee meeting, but he had been instructed by Wilberscheid to "be mum." He admitted, however, that he was aware of rumors about discrepancies discovered by auditors. He said he understood auditors were "talking about two different figures" when asked if $1,500 were the amount involved.

Another committeeman, Supv. Elder Gilbertson, rural Kaukauna, was at the meeting and, although bouncing most queries to Wilberscheid, said, "there was a mistake somewhere along the line," and it "should be straightened out in the near future."

Supvs. Eldred Hedrich of Chilton and Julius Schmidt of Sherwood attended the secret meeting but could not be reached Friday. Gilbertson said there may be one more closed meeting.

Minutes of the Nov. 13 session reveal another meeting is slated for Nov. 27. Although the last meeting ran nearly three hours, there was less than a half page of minutes which state that:

"Methods of disposing of parking fines and accident reports and photocopies and other monies that shall come through the traffic department were discussed with (Miss Glysch) and (Schmieder)."

"All funds shall be turned in by the 10th of each month for the preceding calendar month and a copy of such fines be submitted to the protection of persons and property committee. Motion was made and seconded to cover the above. Motion carried."

Schmieder said it was not proper to label the financial question a shortage. He admitted there has been a poor system of keeping and depositing traffic department revenues from the sales of accident report copies and from parking tickets.

"The money was first thrown in a box" in the traffic department, Schmieder explained. Juno, whom he said assumed responsibility for the money, removed it occasionally and "put it in a safer place." Schmieder related. He did not know the type or location of that place, he said.

The procedure for years, Schmieder explained, was to let the money accumulate then turn in big amounts to the county treasurer. There had been no clear cut policy for depositing the funds, he said. "There was never a policy on when, how or who should turn in the funds to the treasurer."

Schmieder said Juno turned in the money after he was asked about it recently.

The Post-Crescent learned that Juno, about 10:15 p.m. Friday, paid the county treasurer's office $756 for two parking ticket accounts and $729.31 for an accident report account. He was given a receipt which he requested be made out to Calumet County traffic police.

According to Juno, parking tickets are $3 each and the fee for duplicating an accident report is $1.30 or $2.60, depending on if it has to be mailed.

Juno used 10 $100 bills to cover $1,000 of the two accounts.

Juno said Friday that there had been a "bad procedure" in the handling of the parking ticket and accident report funds in his office. "Everybody's been handling it," he explained. "Now it will be narrowed down to one person" and the money will be turned in monthly.

"It's been all straightened out," said Juno, who explained that he met Friday with the auditor and "I got it worked out as to how we're going to handle it."

Juno said he last deposited parking fine and accident report money last April or May. He admitted the money had been allowed to accumulate in a box in the traffic department.

Dispute arises over trustee appointments

A conflict between the county executive and county board over appointive powers, which has smoldered since the creation of the executive office, erupted Friday afternoon after having been fueled by other disputes throughout the week.

County Executive Alvin Woehler won the battle after losing a skirmish in his appointment of a 5-man board of trustees for the County Health Center and Riverview Sanatorium and Hospital that included three new members.

Woehler's nominations of Emmett Root, Sylvester Esler, Dr. George Boyd, Dr. Bruce Heyl and John Wylie were first rejected 16-12 but then confirmed, 22-8, when he resubmitted the same names five minutes after the first vote.

Until last March, the Health Center and the Sanatorium had separate 3-member boards of trustees with one common member. In March the two boards were combined by county board action with new trustees to be appointed this month.

Dr. Boyd, who had been the common member of the two old boards of trustees, and Emmett Root, a former county board member, were the only two holdover trustees reappointed by Woehler.

Esler is a former chairman of the county board, Wylie is an attorney, and Dr. Heyl a psychiatrist.

One of the trustees not reappointed was Eric Wussow, father of Supv. Charles Wussow.

Supv. John Schreiter made the motion to "return the appointments to the executive with the request that Eric Wussow be considered for reappointment." Schreiter said he was not challenging any of the names submitted by Woehler, but that he only was asking for further consideration for Wussow.

After Schreiter's motion passed, Woehler angrily said he was resubmitting the same names. "The appointments were not made on the basis of who is father or son," Woehler said. "Judge who is being appointed, not who isn't."

A motion was made to take up the appointments again, but this was challenged by Supv. Charles Wussow who claimed that it could not be done at the same meeting. He was overruled by County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt who was then upheld on an appeal by Wussow.

Supv. Eugene Kloes then sought to rescind last March's board action in combining the two boards of trustees, but that vote lost.

Confirmation of the appointments then came after another rules challenge from Wussow was rejected.

Abortion stirs debate

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Members of the governor's Health Policy and Planning Task Force clashed over the issue of abortion Friday during a final meeting called to polish the group's lengthy report and record objections to it.

The final report will include statements by backers and foes of legalized abortion, an issue the task force had intended to skirt, as well as minority reports in several other areas.

David Carley of Madison, chairman of the group, said the report could be on Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's desk Nov. 30.

Dennis J. Purtell, a Milwaukee attorney, objected to language in the report which supported the public's right to "socially or morally controversial" medical procedures. He said pro-abortion forces would use the statement to support their position.

"The question of abortion on demand is too complex an issue to be glossed over with such a generality," Purtell said, adding that he was opposed to abortion on demand.

Susan Kay Phillips, a Madison alderman, and Robert Durkin, vice president of the Milwaukee County Labor Council, AFL-CIO, responded by drafting a pro-abortion minority report.

It supported a woman's freedom to determine whether and when to bear children.

"We, therefore, wish to go on record in support of legalization of abortion and legal availability of birth control measures to all," the statement said.

Miss Phillips' statement got at least 11 signatures, and Purtell's at least two from the 45 task force members.

Another major dissent Friday came from Earl Thayer, secretary of the State Medical Society of Wisconsin.

He took issue with a recommendation that the state create a regulatory body to license hospitals, nursing homes and similar institutions, control the quality of care they provide, and review the rates they charge.

"The most that is needed is support for and strengthening of existing mechanisms," Thayer said, contending that duties of the proposed regulatory agency are already being handled by existing government or private agencies.

Thayer made it clear, however, that he was supporting the task force's other recommendations.

A third dissent came from John Martin, assistant director of the Institute of Governmental Affairs at the University of Wisconsin Extension.

Martin said the final report did not take into account the "dismal record of failure" of Wisconsin's treatment systems designed to serve the mentally retarded, cerebral palsied, epileptic or others with developmental disabilities.

Barbara Brown, nursing consultant of Milwaukee Children's Hospital, objected to the task force's call for licensing of health care institutions rather than of individuals in the field.

The task force's major proposals, besides creation of a health services commission to license and regulate hospitals and like institutions, include legislating state authority to establish minimum health insurance standards, greater use of schools in providing basic health services, and special state incentives to encourage consolidation of programs and establishment of community-based health treatment centers.

Challenge to work on

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Work on reconstruction of a U.S. 16 expressway between Pewaukee and Hartland can resume after a year's delay, a federal court judge ruled Friday.

Judge James E. Doyle lifted an injunction he had issued after a suit brought by Hartland and Delafield residents was accepted on grounds no environmental impact statement had been filed for the highway improvement.

But the U.S. Council on Environmental Quality cleared the state's environmental impact statement on the $1 million, four-mile long project last week, state Highway Commissioner William Redmond said.

"We've lost just about a year," Redmond said.

Holiday fair

When there's a model train around, it's a sure thing a little boy won't be far away. Tim Bentle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bentle, Appleton, made a whistle stop at the train display at the annual Christmas Handicraft Fair at Valley Fair Shopping Center. The train is owned by Richard Manser, Appleton. Handcrafted holiday gifts and refreshments are for sale at the fair, which ends at 5 p.m. today. Sponsored by Fox Cities service organizations, civic, women's and church groups, the fair also features a glass blower who will be demonstrating his craft and selling his wares on the mall until Christmas. # Patient re-evaluation foreseen

Outagamie County may have to evaluate each of the 170 patients in its county health centers to determine if they were improperly committed.

Cost of such a re-evaluation could cost as much as $300,000, Outagamie County Executive Alvin Woehler told county supervisors Friday.

The re-evaluation may come as the result of a Milwaukee court decision in which a patient challenged the commitment process in which someone can be committed by a court upon the signature of two lay people and a doctor. The court ruled that this type of commitment violates the individual's rights.

Woehler said all of the counties are expecting orders by Jan. 1 to start evaluating the commitments of all patients. He said they estimate that about 100 of the 170 Outagamie County patients were committed under the process now ruled illegal.

No funds have been provided in the 1973 budget to cover the work that would be involved if the order comes through.

Woehler said that both Eugene Speener, hospital superintendent, and James Stamp, director of the Department of Social Services, indicated they did not have sufficient staff available to do the work. "There is a tremendous amount of work involved in that," Woehler said.

In reviewing the county Health Center budget, Supv. Eugene Kloes challenged the board's willingness to let the budget go through without looking into it in detail. "You talk about nickel and dime items and shy away from million dollar budgets because you don't understand these amounts," he told the board.

Kloes charged the finance committee had not done its job and called for the appointment of a special committee to analyze programs at the Health Center and relate them to costs.

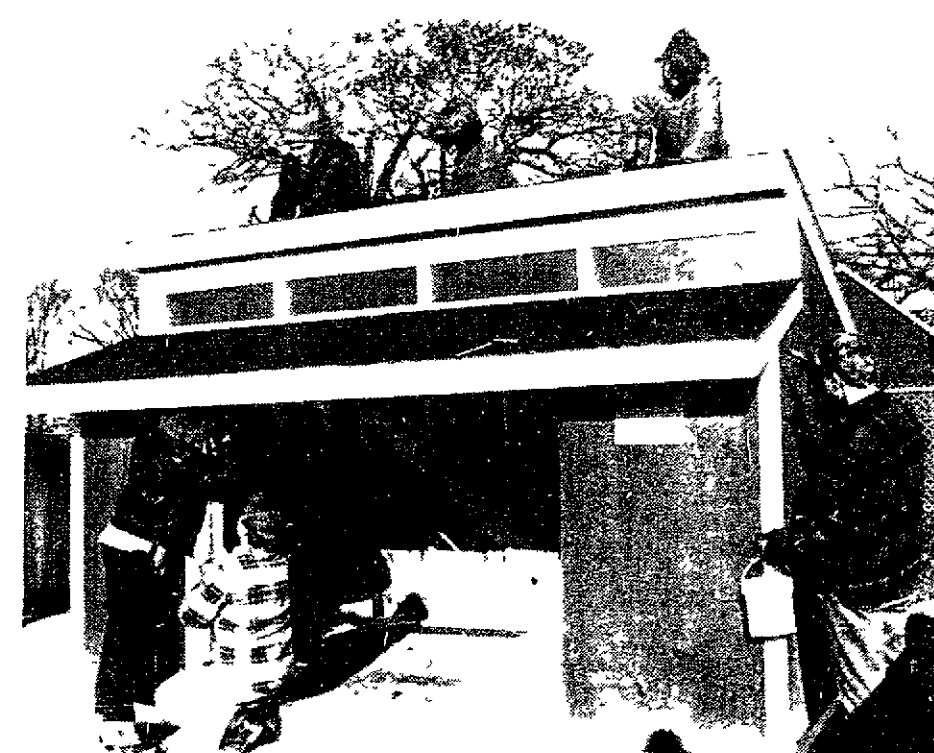

Finance committee chairman Harold Miller answered, telling Kloes that financial records were available throughout the year and not just at budget time. He said the finance committee had faith in both the administrator and the hospital trustees who submitted the budget.

Supv. John Schreiter agreed with Kloes but suggested the committee idea be considered separately from the budget at a later date.

Members of the agriculture, education and human relations committee, which serves as the liaison committee between the board and the trustees, angrily denied neglecting that aspect of their duties. Mrs. Schroeder, a member of the committee, said she resented Kloes' inference that they had neglected the institutions.

Kloes then withdrew his motion.

Help for church

The Appleton High School West vocational wood class is having classes at a church these days. Under the guidance of Jack Everson, the 14 youths are constructing a storage shelter for nursery school equipment at First Congregational United Church of Christ. Working on the shed, which was completed in sections and traileered to the site, are from left on the roof, Don Bogges, Dale Rippert and Steve Wagner, and on the ground, Ed Polar, Gary Skiva and Dave Schroeder.
